B.C. Byelection Set

VANCOUVER (CP) — A provincial byelection will be held Monday, Jan. 13, to fill the Burnaby-Willingdon seat in the Legislature, Premier Bennett announced here Thursday.

The vacancy was caused by the death Oct. 20 of Fred Vulliamy of the New Democratic Party.

Present standing in the 55-seat legislature is Social Credit 32, NDP 16, Liberals six, with one vacancy.

K. L. Morton, chief electoral officer for B.C., said the voters' list for the byelection will close Dec. 20. Nominations will close Saturday, Jan. 4. Advance polls will be open Jan. 9-11.

Mr. Morton said that because of the heavy crush of Christmas mail, special collection centres will be set up where residents of the riding, whose names are not on the list, may turn in registration cards.

Minister Proposes Ban of Far Right

BONN (Reuters) — Interior Minister Ernst Benda will recommend a ban on the extreme right-wing National Democratic party at a cabinet meeting next week, West German government sources said Thursday night.

Benda started a special investigation into the party's activities this fall to decide whether there are sufficient grounds to have it declared unconstitutional.

Near Caracas

Jet Falls With 51 Into Sea

CARACAS (UPI) — Searchers said they found no sign of life today where a Pan American World Airways jet carrying 51 persons from New York exploded and crashed into the Caribbean Thursday night.

The control tower at Maiquetia International Airport said search vessels and planes had spotted fire-blackened wreckage just off the Venezuelan coast.

A tower spokesman said "The plane apparently exploded and burned." Planes and ships however checked further for any survivors.

The Boeing 707 was Pan American's Flight 217 non-stop from New York to Caracas and carried eight crew members and 43 passengers.

Maiquetia control towers said it lost radio contact with the jet six minutes before it was due to land. At the time the plane was 16 miles from the airport and approaching at 1,000 feet.

Pan American spokesmen in New York said the jet sent no message it was in trouble.

But several witnesses told Venezuelan naval authorities they saw it go down.

Pan American said the jet's captain was Sidney Stillwaght of West Islip, N.Y. The co-pilot was William Caswell of Upper Saddle River, N.J.; the engineer Richard Titus of Ridgewood, N.J.; purser Alfred Perez of Valley Stream, N.Y.; purser Mrs. Heidrun Caplan of New York City and stewardesses Francisca Buyers and Catherine Kane of New York and Eve Johansson of Stockholm, Sweden, and a stewardess trainee, Miss M. Ambrey whose hometown was not listed.

East Summit Cancelled

LONDON (UPI) — The Warsaw Pact summit at Budapest, scheduled for early next week, has been cancelled because of unbridled differences among member nations, east European diplomatic sources said Thursday.

Pay, Benefits

Airline Pact Offered

MONTREAL (CP) — The 2,200 Air Canada employees who had begun work-to-rule procedures Monday to back up contract demands have been offered an eight-per-cent increase in wages the airline estimates would cost $1,250,000 in a one-year agreement to Aug. 1, 1969.

John Hayes, vice-president of the Canadian Air Line Employees Association, told a news conference Thursday he would recommend unanimous acceptance of the latest offer.

Other fringe benefits include one more statutory holiday, four weeks vacation after 15 years service instead of after 20, improvements in shift premiums and seniority. Air Canada said the contract is retroactive to last Aug. 1.

Under the last contract which expired July 31, passenger agents earned from $325 to $550

Constitutional Talk Off Until February

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal-provincial constitutional conference scheduled for next week has been cancelled and Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons Thursday there is general agreement that it should convene early in February.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson said the federal-provincial conference of finance ministers scheduled for Dec. 19 will likely go ahead on that date.

The constitutional conference had been scheduled to open Monday until the sudden illness of Quebec Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand.

Trudeau said in reply to Opposition leader Robert Stanfield that all provinces except one accepted the idea of a conference postponement as requested by Quebec.

He did not name the province but it is known to be British Columbia.

Trudeau said one province cannot see its way clear to a February meeting but that he hopes some suitable arrangement can be worked out. Again, he did not name the province.

The prime minister said in reply to Lincoln Alexander (PC-Hamilton West) that some provinces have asked that the federal government's official languages bill not be passed by Parliament before the constitutional conference.

As a result, debate on the bill would be postponed at least a month.

Trudeau said it may be possible to put the bill through every stage except third and final reading before the constitutional conference.

David Macdonald (PC-Egmont) asked that the federal government's position be made public in sufficient time before the conference so that there could be public discussion of the issue.

Trudeau said this will be considered after a new date for the conference is set.

Bennett Brief Won't Wait For Parley

Premier Bennett, saying the issues are too urgent to be shelved, plans to release copies of the B.C. brief on the constitution at a press conference today.

"There are many things before Parliament now, and more coming, that bear on the constitutional situation that we feel there should be no delay," the premier said Thursday.

"If the federal government really wants a conference we feel it should be held now and we're going to release our position, or brief, anyway because we think these things before Parliament, and others, are so important."

"We want British Columbians to know what their government's position is and we want the country to know it too before Parliament deals with these things."

The press conference was scheduled before Quebec's Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand, in hospital for treatment of "cardiac troubles," requested the constitutional conference to be held in Ottawa next week be postponed.

Still Too Many Boats Involved

Fisheries Face New Cuts

OTTAWA (CP) — Further deputy fisheries minister, said steps will have to be taken eventually to reduce the "excessive" number of boats harvesting the Pacific salmon fisheries, Dr. A. W. H. Needler, federal fisheries minister, said Thursday.

The fisheries department had just taken steps to prevent new boats joining in the Pacific salmon catch. But eventually this moratorium would have to be extended, possibly by the government buying up currently-licensed boats.

Needler, appearing before the Senate science policy committee, said studies show that at least 100 boats are involved in the fishery, but only 50 are needed to harvest the catch. He said the government would like to see the number of boats reduced to 50.

An American-led commonwealth would only be possible, he said, if the U.S. policy-making machinery were re-adjusted to allow Canadians

'Mysterious Epidemic' Strikes 104 Teachers

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — A "mysterious epidemic" struck down 104 of New Westminster's 120 elementary school teachers Thursday.

The teachers have been working to rule since Nov. 28.

As a result of the teachers' absence 450 children were sent home from 12 classes in Grades 5, 6 and 7.

SUBSTITUTES

The remainder of the 3,700 students in the city's eight elementary schools stayed at school, some under the supervision of 40 substitute teachers.

A school board spokesman described it as a "mysterious epidemic."

The teachers have been working to rule to gain direct talks between the New Westminster Elementary School Teachers Association and the school board instead of having to deal through the board's negotiator, George P. Cassidy.

In working to rule, the teachers have refused to supervise lunch hours or engage in extra-curricular school activities.

Lorne Walker, spokesman for the teachers, said they wanted to sit down with the board and discuss "the situation and atmosphere that exists in the district."

"FATIGUE"

He said they did not want to discuss salaries, which have gone to arbitration, but to meet the board on equal ground "not on a lord-serf relationship."

Mr. Walker, one of the teachers absent from school Thursday, said he was suffering from fatigue.

He said he understood his colleagues had a variety of ailments—"colds, headaches, flu and mental fatigue."

Officers Cleared In Sinking

WELLINGTON (Reuters) — Charges against the master, chief officer and chief engineer of a vessel which sank here with the loss of 51 lives have been formally dismissed, the New Zealand Parliament was told today.

The charges were that each caused the deaths and the loss of the 8,948-ton inter-island ferry Wahine which foundered in Wellington harbor during a storm April 10.

Best Use of Money

Cards Yield To Real Aid

For someone who lives alone in a room that is tucked away in a big downtown building, Christmas cards can become extremely important. At this time of year they provide a strong link with the past, with the world that lies outside that lonely room.

But for someone like Mrs. Anita Hayward, a cheerful, 80-year-old widow who lives alone on Fort Street, there is something that becomes more important than this.

It can perhaps be expressed best by her own thoughts as she recorded them on a scratch pad the other day.

"Dear friends on my Christmas card list," she wrote, "I have been reading the Colonist's sad stories of the poor souls who have so little money at Christmas and all through the year."

Her notes go on to detail how she decided at the last moment to refrain from spending money on Christmas cards so she could donate a similar amount to the Colonist 500 Fund.

The fund contributes to the Christmas each year of 500 families selected by the Christmas Bureau, an agency of the Community Chest.

Mrs. Hayward figured that 50 cards at 25 cents each and 50 five-cent stamps would cost her $15. But because she might think of other friends later, she increased the amount to $17 and gave it to the fund.

She was certain her friends would understand that they would prefer her to use the money this way.

A few others have already done the same as Mrs. Hayward.

Of course, there are other ways of helping the fund, and Colonist readers are quick to find them.

For example, on Saturday and Sunday, students from Malvern and Westerham School will sing carols to collect money for the fund. And Greater Victoria Water District tunnel employees reached into their own pockets for a total of $230.

Donations can be brought or mailed to the Colonist, 2631 Douglas, or left at Avis Rent-A-Car, 800 Douglas.

Saigon on Assault Alert

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. B-52 jets, supporting allied troops, are on alert in the Saigon area for a possible Communist assault, blizzards 75 miles from the South Vietnamese capital Thursday.

North Vietnamese troops mauled a U.S. Marine unit in a 10-hour battle just below the Demilitarized Zone.

AMERICAN DEAD

In Saigon, the U.S. command placed the toll of American dead in almost eight years of fighting in Vietnam at 30,051, including 132 killed in the week ended last Saturday. The overall total was approaching the 33,629 U.S. troops killed in the Korean war.

The eight-engine B-52s struck eight times late Wednesday and Thursday in an area north and northwest of Saigon where allied troops reported killing at least 56 Communists in a series of clashes. Thirteen South Vietnamese paratroopers were killed and 38 wounded in one of the fights.

Allied headquarters said South Vietnamese troops in the Saigon military district, the Nha Be naval base nine miles southeast of the capital and six military subsectors were on full alert "as a preventive measure."

YELLOW ALERTS

Informed U.S. military sources said precautionary yellow alerts were ordered at the big U.S. bases at Bien Hoa and Long Binh just north of Saigon. Navy river patrols were doubled in a Communist stronghold known as the Parrot's Beak west of Saigon.

Word spread through Saigon that Communist forces might establish a new assault on the city to coincide with the eighth anniversary Dec. 28 of the National Liberation Front (NLF) as the political arm of the Viet Cong.

Ky, U.S. Reach Talks Pact

PARIS (UPI) — The United States and South Vietnam, dismissing reports of a rift between their delegations, announced full accord Thursday on an allied procedural package plan aimed at getting the long-stalled Vietnam war conference underway.

The agreement — including new proposals for seating arrangements — was reached during a 90-minute meeting between U.S. chief negotiator Averell Harriman and Vice-President Ky, director of South Vietnam's delegation.

Both sides refused to disclose details of the agreement which Harriman said would be submitted to the North Vietnamese "soon" probably at a private meeting in Paris Friday.

Hanoi officials said they would wait for the Americans to explain their proposals, but they warned the new allied package must conform with North Vietnam's basic policy aims. They said Hanoi would continue to demand seating arrangements that would make clear the Viet Cong is a full-fledged partner in four-party negotiations.

"We discussed matters in which we are both interested — including seating arrangements," Harriman said after the meeting in Ky's temporary Paris residence. "We have reached full agreement on new proposals which will be made."

But South Vietnamese President Thieu, quoted by Saigon radio, warned "sitting at the conference table does not mean we are ready to make concessions to the Communists."

Harriman strongly denied reports of a rift between Saigon and Washington over definition of ground rules for the expanded Paris negotiations that will seek a basis for peace in Vietnam.

While declining to give details of the allied procedural proposals, Harriman said, "we will stick to the principles to which we are both very definitely committed."

Diplomatic observers interpreted the statement to mean that neither Washington nor Saigon would modify its stand that the new conference should be a two-sided affair between the allies and an opposite side composed of Hanoi and Viet Cong negotiators.

An Inglorious End

ON WEDNESDAY of this week External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp officially called an inglorious end to a glorious idea which if carried through might have saved countless thousands of lives in a war-torn corner of Africa.

On that day Mr. Sharp announced in the House that the government had ordered the withdrawal of Canadian aircraft from the Biafra relief operation following the failure of both the Nigerian and Biafran regimes to co-operate in allowing mercy flights into the stricken areas.

It was just a little over two months ago that Mr. Sharp and Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau stated that Canada had accomplished a "diplomatic breakthrough" by securing permission of the Nigerian government for Canadian aircraft to fly in medical and food supplies to starving Biafrans.

Mr. Trudeau told the House at that time that Nigeria had agreed not to interfere with such flights. Mr. Sharp went further by stating that Canada's "very careful" policy in the matter had paid off handsomely because now the Canadian government had the Nigerian government's guarantee for "unhindered flights."

Whether the collapse of the scheme is due to Nigerian and Biafran vacillation or simply the failure of Ottawa to understand the operational ground rules will probably never be known.

The only certain thing in the whole ill-starred performance is that Mr. Trudeau's original announcement was both premature and over-optimistic.

Pakistan Problem

PAKISTAN ACHIEVED independence in 1947 and became a federal Islamic republic in 1956, and until the first president, Iskander Mirza, proclaimed martial law in 1958 its progress both political and economic, was hampered by the instability of governments.

President Mirza met the last of recurring crises 10 years ago by abrogating the constitution, dismissing central and provincial cabinets and assemblies, abolishing all political parties and putting the country's destiny into the hands of the commander-in-chief of the army, General Mohammed Ayub Khan.

General Ayub, however, avoided a commitment to outright military dictatorship by appointing experienced civil officials to control administration, while retaining the army's authority. It was a more or less effective arrangement, although never considered a permanent solution for the country's difficulties.

General Ayub assumed the presidency on Mr. Mirza's retirement in the same year he was given the responsibility of government. And in spite of the war with India and the continuing perplexities over the peaceful future of Kashmir he has done well.

To a large extent he has succeeded in stamping out corruption, the formerly extensive black marketeering and related abuses such as food hoarding and profiteering. And by political reform he has created at last an acceptably stable system of government.

It seemed until recently that the people were well satisfied with the administration under their handsome soldier-president and that if he did not choose to seek re-election in 1970 he would be in a position to name his heir apparent.

The situation has changed suddenly and unexpectedly.

There were violent and fatal demonstrations by Punjabi students in November, in support of the anti-government People's Party and its imprisoned leader, Z. Ali Bhutto. There was even a half-hearted attempt at assassination of the president.

Simultaneously with Mr. Bhutto's arrest came the detention of Khan Wali Khan and other members of the National Awami Party, which indicates to some observers an unlikely alliance between it and the People's Party — unlikely because Awamis are pro-Moscow and Mr. Bhutto has shown a preference for an alignment with Peking.

It is recalled, however, that in 1964 when Miss Fatima Jinnah, sister of the late founder of the state, contested the presidential election the most disparate and antagonistic factions in the opposition united to support her. Their purpose was the defeat of President Ayub and what he calls his plan of "basic democracy."

It could happen again, improbable as it may seem, if Mr. Bhutto emerges from imprisonment under the Defence of Pakistan law, as a martyr and a hero.

It seems that Pakistan has not finally escaped the political instability which marked its infancy, but for its future's sake it is to be hoped that rivalries will be marked by moderation.

Safe Walking

LAST SATURDAY ten auxiliary policemen observed the stretch of Douglas Street, between Fort and Fisgard for three hours and counted 606 pedestrians who failed to obey the signals — who launched forth across the road after the "don't walk" warning had come on.

This disregard for the signals, and especially in such volume, is disruptive to the flow of downtown traffic. It is also frustrating to drivers, which as the Greater Victoria and District Safety Council has pointed out in its tips to pedestrians, creates a situation in which accidents are more apt to happen. Angry drivers don't concentrate on driving safely as much as they should.

The police, preparing for Defensive Walking Week which begins on Sunday, are hopeful that warnings and the use of a loud-bailer to advise erring pedestrians of their misdeeds will result in a considerable improvement of the traffic habits of those going about on foot in the busy pre-Christmas period. Summonses may have to be substituted for warnings, the Victoria police chief has said, adding that a summons is much better than an injury that might put one in hospital for Christmas.

But after the campaign, what? The police by their presence with whistles and the loud-bailer are temporarily supplying a missing element in the signal system. Many if not most of the transgressors, it seems sure, simply do not notice that the signal has changed, but follow like sheep the people ahead of them.

The bell that used to accompany the change from stop to go and go to stop has long passed from the traffic scene. Perhaps it could be usefully revived to mark audibly the end of the "walk" period.

Japan Ranks Third Among the Economic Giants As Nation Answers New Industrial Challenge

By FREDERICK NOSSAL

JAPAN has become the symbol of the New Asia, a vibrant mixture of East and West, a nation where the thrust of the nuclear age still clashes with ancient, largely outdated traditions.

To Americans and Europeans, Japan remains a curious enigma culturally, although economically the country is surging ahead toward the status of a superpower.

The rapid transformation of Japan, both physically and spiritually, staggers the imagination. To many Canadians and Americans who do not know it, it is to this day a distant Oriental place where the women wear kimonos and the men are always bowing to one another.

An Englishman living in Tokyo put it rather well. "Even after you've been here for years, it is still a nation where legend, fact and prejudice swirl around with all the unrealistic enchantment of a Japanese painting," he said.

Yet the hard realities of Japan are inescapable. A generation ago, the Japanese tried to build an Asian empire by force, and failed. Three decades ago, in 1937 and 1938, Japan was consolidating its position on the Chinese mainland, Formosa and Korea had long been under the domination of Imperial Japan.

By the end of 1941 the Japanese felt so confident they were even prepared to tackle the United States. The attack on Pearl Harbor was followed by astounding victories in the Philippines, the Netherlands Indies (now Indonesia), Burma, Singapore and Hong Kong.

A quarter of a century has passed since the tide turned against the Japanese militarists.

The bloody battle of Guadalcanal in the Solomon Islands ended with a Japanese withdrawal in February, 1943, and by the following year the Allies were bombing the Japanese islands.

Today, Japan is enjoying the longest economic boom in the brief, but hectic history of its postwar growth. It began in October, 1945, and by August it had outlasted the previous longest expansionary period of 31 months in 1935-37.

According to Japanese statistics, the boom has carried Japan past Britain and France into the position of the third biggest economy in the non-Communist world, following West Germany and the United States.

If it continues, Japanese economists are confident they will overtake West Germany within 18 months to two years. The Japanese GNP expanded in the 1967 financial year by a staggering 18.7 per cent (13.7 per cent in real terms).

The arid nature of statistics, however, cannot really tell the story of Japan — in many ways the first of the large Asian lands to insist in its people's hope for their material future.

The Japanese economic miracle is succeeding, for instance, whereas neither Chinese communism nor Indian socialism has made nearly such a positive impact on the day-to-day living standards of these other two Asian giants.

Japan's workers are extremely well paid by Asian standards, and already enjoy a higher life than millions of poorer Europeans. And, like Canadians and Americans, they are finding that the best thing to do with money is to spend it.

The monthly income of the average Japanese wage-earner in 1967 was around $30 a month. It rose to about $100 a month in 1961 and jumped to almost $200 in 1966. Real income rose much more slowly, as prices shot up too, but in the six years to 1966, real income improved by more than 30 per cent.

This extra money has been spent partly on better food. Consumption of meat in Japan increased fourfold in the 10 years from 1955 to 1965.

The most remarkable result of Japan's new affluence has been the consumption boom. In just a few years, the consumer durables that are symbols of Western industrial society have become commonplace in Japan.

Television sets, washing machines, sewing machines, oil heaters, electric fans, refrigerators, vacuum cleaners, cameras and bicycles all are to be found in more than half the nation's homes.

Tourism in Japan is thriving as people spend more on holidays and other leisure activities. Despite high land costs, golf courses are proliferating at a great rate.

All the oddities of affluent consumption are also present: Sudden crazes for musical instruments such as guitars and flutes, and high teen-age spending on clothes and cosmetics — for both men and women.

One of the surveys which are constantly being taken in Japan revealed recently that more than half the nation's households possess a hair dryer.

Psychologists as well as salesmen believe that much of Japan's conspicuous consumption exists because people can not afford to buy what they really want — homes of their own. The level of home ownership in Japan is falling steadily because families can not afford to pay the high prices caused by the land price spiral.

Many Japanese are not satisfied with the equipment and structure of their homes. Smallness is the biggest complaint in Tokyo. Yet there is no real alternative, because residential land prices have risen about ninefold in the past 12 years.

Officials frankly admit that Japan will face a critical housing shortage until decentralization measures begin to work and the economy's growth slows down. Then land prices will tend to stabilize. But this will take at least ten, and possibly 20 years.

Realistic Japanese will tell you that industrialization and economic growth have improved the people's diet, clothed them fashionably and well, and put TV sets and washing machines in their homes. All this has also cost Japan much, they add quickly.

Air pollution is a vicious menace which at best causes summer dim-outs of the sun in the great urban areas, and in some cases even cuts years off people's lives.

Urban crowding is growing worse. People are leaving their rural homes to come to the cities, and industry is encroaching into the once green country side.

Japan's economic planning agency estimates that by 1985, if the present trend continues, about 70 per cent of the population of 120 million will be concentrated in urban areas.

Tokyo: A Mushrooming Monster of 14,000,000

Japanese speak of Tokyo's population with a mixture of pride and anxiety. Nobody is quite sure just how many people live in and around the world's greatest metropolis.

The figure is around 12,500,000 possibly as high as 14,000,000. And according to a symposium on the post-industrial society, held recently in Japan, by the year 2,000 Tokyo alone will be a megalopolis of 70,000,000 to 80,000,000 people.

But economic planning agency officials in Japan say they can not do very much about preventing urban sprawl. Instead they are working to improve the nation's transport and communications networks.

A major plan accepts a megalopolis stretching from Sapporo, on Hokkaido (the northernmost island) through to Tokyo, Osaka and Hiroshima (on the central island of Honshu) and on to Fukuoka (in the southern island of Kyushu).

This endless city will exist by 1985. The planners envisage vast, new super railway express linking the area — with underwater tunnels joining the islands. Intercity communications will be completely computerized.

But when you see Japan, what grips you most are neither the reminders of yesterday, nor the ambitious plans for tomorrow. Admittedly, in the century since the Meiji restoration of 1868, which marked the end of feudalism in Japan, the nation has advanced from obscurity to become the wealthiest power in Asia.

However, the big story of Japan is the present. Japan is not only the world's biggest shipbuilder — responsible for 38 per cent of all ships being built, according to Lloyd's Register of Shipping. It also builds the world's biggest ships by far.

Japanese cars and planes are making a deep impact right across the globe. Last month, Japan's infant aircraft industry demonstrated the fruits of 15 years of effort.

At the Tokyo Aerospace Show — Asia's most important aircraft exhibition — the Japanese displayed a medium-range transport, three twin-engine business aircraft and a light plane. This represents a fantastic feat because for nearly a decade after its defeat by the Allies, Japan was not permitted to develop aircraft of any kind.

A far better indication of Japan's challenge to western industrial dominance comes from the motor industry. In the final months of 1967, the Japanese motor industry achieved a target it had been aiming at for some years.

It became the second biggest producer of motor vehicles in the world, bigger than West Germany and well ahead of Britain.

The industry already has left its mark on the United States. New campaigns are being prepared or are already under way in Europe and Britain.

Southeast Asia is seeing its share of new Japanese models. Japanese cars dominate the streets of Rangoon, for instance. Assembly plants are being built in Thailand, South Korea, Felo in South Africa, Portugal and South America. New dealer chains are being formed in Canada, Europe, Britain and the Middle East.

Negotiations are under way for the sale of car-making plants to Eastern European nations such as Poland, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia.

Japan's automobile export figures are beginning to impress international traders. In 1967 Japan exported 223,000 units. In the first six months of 1968, exports had increased 53 per cent over a similar period of 1967.

Yet the industry still had considerable growth ahead of it. Britain for example, exports 22 per cent of its production. At present the Japanese industry still mainly concerned with its booming home market, exports only 16 per cent.

Some political analysts in Asia believe that the direction of Japan's foreign policy will depend ultimately on the opportunities the country is given in world markets, and particularly in the West.

For the time being, the government of Prime Minister Eisaku Sato is aligned closely with the United States, still Japan's most important trading partner.

But some Japanese predict a change of mood in the country around the end of the century. As China grows in political stature and economic strength, Japan's cultural ties with China will tend to reassert themselves.

Many young Japanese idealists see China as the cradle of their own civilization, and are watching Mao Tse-tung's social experiments with a certain fascination.

Western strategists argue that the richer the Japanese grow, the wider will become the gap separating them from the Chinese. China does not have the faintest hope of catching up to Japan's living standards, given normal peace-time conditions.

Logically then, Japan should prefer to stay among its own global economic class — among the relatively affluent Western nations whose people can afford to buy increasingly sophisticated products being turned out by Japan's mushrooming industries.

And yet the vision of long-term co-operation between Japan with its know-how, and China with its huge population and vast land mass continues to intrigue politicians and business leaders in Tokyo.

In the immediate future, at least, the West need not worry about losing its most confident ally in Asia. For whether or not the dream of a powerful Sino-Japanese alliance becomes a reality will certainly not be decided before the next century.

Reconciliation Hopes

Ibos Fear Peace More Than Famine

By COLIN LEGUM from London

WITH disaster from famine looming for the seven million Biafrans besieged in the Ibo heartland, a new scene of urgency has entered into the debate as to whether it is possible for the Ibo ever to become reconciled with the rest of the Nigerian from whom, as the dominant people of the Eastern Region of Federal Nigeria, they seceded in a bid to establish the independent Republic of Biafra.

It is the fear of Ibo that they have no future in a wider Nigeria. This strengthens the determination of their leadership, grouped around Colonel Odumegwu Ojukwu, to hold out, despite impending disaster. Calculations made by international relief agencies suggest that because of the shortage of staple foods — yams and cassava — from January, 1969, between 1,500,000 to two million Ibo face starvation — unless they walk out of the besieged territory into the federal-held parts of the country.

At least half of the total Ibo people — about seven million — already live in Federal territory; so those bottled up in Biafra constitute only a part of the Ibo nation. Within recent months, too, Ibo have begun to return to the Northern region of Nigeria where the terrible massacres of 1966 occurred.

The team of international observers in Nigeria — invited by the federal government to examine allegations of genocide leveled by the Biafrans — have visited Jos in the Plateau State, where they found that a large number of Ibo have returned to their homes and employment. Jos was one of the areas where the worst of the massacres occurred in 1966.

Biafran leaders are themselves divided over the question of whether or not to continue the civil war. But a "peace party" which emerged in Biafra two months ago found its advice roughly rejected at about the time a new infusion of military support began to arrive from French sources. The leader of the "peace party" — Sir Louis Mbanefo — is reported to be in detention.

This has not so far been denied. Sir Louis was the former chief justice of the Ibo-dominated Eastern Region, and led Biafra's delegation to the peace negotiations at Kampala earlier this year. Anti-Ibo feelings are nothing new in Nigeria; but they have become greatly exacerbated as a result of the civil war. The task of reconciliation is bound to be difficult and delicate. This much was conceded by the federal military leader, General Yakubu Gowon, when he discussed this problem at the Ahmadu Bello University in Zaria a few days ago. "Our friends and foes alike have expressed concern about the prospects of national reconciliation in Nigeria in view of the bitterness of the current conflict," the General said. "Many people have asked me whether the Ibo can ever be integrated into Nigerian society again. My personal conviction, and that of my colleagues in the Supreme Military Council and Federal Executive Council, is that national reconciliation is possible."

However, he went on to say that because of "vile and unscrupulous propaganda" it will not be an easy task to demonstrate to the ordinary Ibo man that he still has a place in Nigeria. "But I sincerely believe that reconciliation in this country will be achieved in a comparatively short time." He cited the experience of the North and South in the United States, and of France and Germany.

General Gowon then went on to spell out the measures the federal military government propose to adopt to achieve national reconciliation. First would be to recognize the existence of ethnic differences while promoting the evolution of Nigerian nationhood. Second, the National Rehabilitation Commission and other federal agencies and state governments would expand their relief work to the Ibo people on the land, and to provide jobs and opportunities for the displaced people in the war-damaged areas. The Nigerian Red Cross would be strengthened to take over the work of the International Red Cross.

Third, the federal government would embark on a massive program of economic reconstruction which would benefit the Ibo as well as the rest of Nigeria, which has suffered as a result of the war. Fourth, Nigerians had to engage in "a struggle for the minds of the people." All must be prepared "to show kindness to their less fortunate brothers who had suffered most."

November's elections in French Africa, as the territory is now known, have returned Mr. Ali Arel's ruling party, which supports the continuation of French rule, with an increased majority. The opposition party, Mr. Hassan Gouled's African People's Union, retained six seats in Djibouti itself. This repeated the pattern of last year's referendum when the urban population of the capital voted overwhelmingly "Non" while the territory as a whole voted in favor of continued association with France.

As one of Africa's last colonies, the small territory at the mouth of the Red Sea opposite Aden is of some concern to the Organization of African Unity's (OAU) African Liberation Committee. There are two rival nationalist groups which work from outside the Africa — the Djibouti Liberation Movement with headquarters in Ethiopia and the Somali Coast Freedom Party which is based in Somalia. At its last meeting in July the Liberation Committee decided to give its support to both movements.

Astronauts at Mercy of Single Engine

From Houston, Texas

Apollo 8's Christmas-time flight around the moon will be among the most dangerous missions ever attempted by man.

During the seven-day flight, Apollo 8 will streak 250,000 miles to the lunar vicinity, orbit the moon for 20 hours and then return to earth.

The Apollo 8 crew, Col. Frank Borman, Capt. James A. Lovell Jr. and Maj. William A. Anders, will become the first humans to be captured by the gravitational pull of another celestial body.

Their lives will depend on the performance of a single 20,500-pound thrust rocket engine. If that engine fails, they will orbit the moon long after their oxygen supply fails, beyond help.

Even if that rocket engine performs perfectly and Apollo 8 starts for home, the re-entry poses hazards never faced before.

Giant first-stage rocket for Saturn V moon booster begins journey to Cape Kennedy, Fla., the U.S. moonport.

The spacecraft will come flashing back from the moon at about 24,000 miles an hour.

The on-board computers must guide it across 250,000 miles of space into a 32-mile wide "window" or corridor through the earth's atmosphere. Just before re-entry, the command module, containing the crew, is separated by the service module, which contains most of the oxygen supplies. This leaves about seven hours of oxygen on board for the crew.

If the spacecraft undershoots the corridor, or comes in too steeply, the extreme braking pressure of colliding with the atmosphere could cause the craft to break up.

If the spacecraft overshoots the corridor, it could hit the atmosphere and skip, like a pebble across a pond, back into space. This skip trajectory, space officials believe, would most likely be fatal to the crew because their oxygen would run out before the spacecraft's new orbit returns it to earth.

Even after the crew hits the corridor, their problems are far from over. The automatic re-entry system must roll the spacecraft's angle of attack on the atmosphere precisely correct or the spacecraft could still skip out into space again.

New Men Not Political Ideologists

None Likely to Upstage Nixon

By ROBERT J. DONAVAN, from Washington

Practical is the word of the Nixon cabinet.

On the whole, the incoming federal department heads are of a type clearly that are more interested in dealing with problems than promoting any political ideology.

They appear to be the kind who can carry out Nixon's promise of a hard new look at what is going on in Washington.

Among them, in contrast to previous cabinets, is no towering figure like Gen. George Marshall or Charles E. Wilson; no man with a political following like William Jennings Bryan, nor yet a household name like Robert F. Kennedy or John Foster Dulles.

Certainly, the new cabinet contains no one who is likely to overshadow or upstage the next president, though he has promised each of them a wide measure of independence.

Because of their uniquely intimate relationship with Nixon, William Rogers, the new secretary of state, John Mitchell, the new attorney general, and Robert Finch, the new secretary of health, education and welfare will start out as the men most influential in the group.

In a way the most surprising thing about the cabinet, in view of Nixon's deep-seated political weakness among minority groups, is the absence of a distinguished Negro and Jew.

A Negro had been anticipated as a means of helping Nixon reach an understanding with the black community, which promises to be one of his most critical problems. Whether the omission will have an adverse effect for him in this regard remains to be seen.

For the most part the new men are rather what might have been expected in a cabinet of a Republican president who is determined to pursue a moderate, middle-of-the-road course.

Unlike many figures who have dominated some other cabinets, especially under Republican presidents, they are predominantly professional men rather than men of vast and often inherited wealth, though Melvin Laird, the new secretary of defense, does come of a family of great wealth in lumber holdings, and several others have built up considerable fortunes.

The most unorthodox appointment, yet perhaps one of the best, was that of Rogers, a man with practically no experience in foreign affairs, as secretary of state.

Traditionally the role has gone to men steeped in experience in foreign relations.

Since American foreign policy has had its ups and downs for decades, however, this tradition has been less than an unqualified success.

Nearly all authorities agree that part of the trouble with American foreign policy has lain in the inadequacy of the state department, as regards its structure as well as its inertia and often ineptitude.

New blood is needed all through the vast state department bureaucracy, in the opinion of nearly everyone who has studied it.

Most presidents go to Washington determined to do a thorough housecleaning in the state department, but the task has never seemed quite to come off. Now it looks as though Rogers, working through Finch, will produce the major shakeup he had promised in the campaign.

In the early years, at least, Rogers is likely to concentrate more on administering the department and making it function efficiently than on creating foreign policy.

As a former attorney general in the Eisenhower administration he has had the experience of running the large and complex department of justice. He is generally credited with having done it well.

A highly attractive and likable man, Rogers is an able lawyer who has been on the Washington scene most of the time since the 1940s, when he worked for various congressional committees. He thus brings to the task or overhauling the state department a rare knowledge of how the federal government works.

Rogers' concentration on administering the department at the outset means that Nixon will be the major architect of his foreign policy, as he has always aspired to be.

Dr. Henry Kissinger, the Harvard foreign affairs specialist who has been named as his special assistant for national security affairs, will work closely with the new president and will doubtless exert great influence on foreign policy as time goes on.

Nixon, Kissinger and Rogers will function evidently as a triumvirate in the making of foreign policy, with Laird exercising a strong influence.

The Laird appointment also was an unusual one. Indeed, it was unheard of for a president to take a man from the House of Representatives and put him at the head of the Pentagon. Yet Laird, like Rogers, is highly knowledgeable and tough-minded and has devoted years in the home to the problem of military affairs.

The fact that Laird does not have the traditional background for the Pentagon and that the new secretary of state is not a foreign policy expert could turn out to be an advantage.

For neither is encrusted with predilections in these fields, nor burdened with the necessity of defending old positions as regards the Vietnam war; for example, neither is clearly a hawk or a dove.

Each can take the kind of fresh look at the problem that a person who had spent a lifetime in military and diplomatic affairs could not.

If there is any one man in the Nixon cabinet who is on a hot spot it is John Mitchell, the new attorney-general.

The president-elect based his winning campaign very heavily on the law and order issue. He clearly gave the American people to understand that he would provide them someone much better than Ramsey Clark, the present attorney-general.

In effect he blamed Clark for being soft on crime and suggested that the Republican attorney general would see to it that the streets were safer and that American life would again be more as it was before the days of riots and demonstrations.

How John Mitchell, a quiet, pipe-smoking Wall Street lawyer who has specialized in municipal securities, is going to meet this challenge will be one of the most fascinating stories in the Nixon administration.

Crime is a very intractable problem at this stage in American history. Racial tension is at the danger point in California, New York and various other areas.

Since Mitchell has never been a public figure, it is impossible to know what image he will present in the face of unrest. There is no way of ascertaining in advance whether it will be a humane image, a stern image, even a ruthless image.

All that can be said is that his problem is both enormous

UN Success Most Striking In Negative Way

By STEPHEN SCOTT, from United Nations

This week's extension of the mandate of the United Nations peacekeeping force in Cyprus provides a succinct, easily-understood success story for those who may sometimes wonder whether the UN is an effective instrument in world affairs.

Often the UN must be explained in an almost negative fashion.

For instance, it is true that the world organization has been unable to find a long-term settlement in the Middle East.

But who knows what the world situation would have been if the UN had not taken the steps it has taken over the years?

The mission of Gunnar Jarring as special UN Middle East envoy cannot be called a success. But, again, who knows what would have happened if the Security Council had not passed the Nov. 22, 1967, resolution setting out basic terms for political settlement and calling for his appointment?

The Security Council this week extended the mandate of the Cyprus force for another six months, after hearing requests for it from Greece, Turkey and Cyprus.

Representatives of all three countries and Secretary-General U Thant said Turkish — and Greek-Cypriot were talking initial steps toward reconciliation, but that the force still was needed to assure peace during negotiations.

The force, which includes a large number of Canadians, was created in 1964 to separate the hostile Greek and Turkish factions on the island republic. The situation has deteriorated to the extent that there was a danger of a serious confrontation between Greece and Turkey.

It took time, but slowly a semblance of normalcy returned to the island. At the same time the UN representatives of Cyprus helped get talks started between the two groups.

Across the world there is another facet of UN effectiveness. The UN is in charge of enterprise aimed at making use of the huge Mekong Delta system for electricity and irrigation.

The operation requires the co-operation of Laos, Cambodia and South Vietnam, unlikely bedfellows in any operation.

Many countries have given assistance to the development, including Canada.

and much more complex than Nixon intimated in his campaign speeches.

Nixon and Mitchell will try, as the saying goes, to set a new moral tone and to bring more modern methods to bear on the fight against crime. Still, Mitchell has been handed as tough an assignment as has ever been given a new cabinet officer.

At least he starts out with the great confidence of the president-elect, whose law partner he has been for several years.

Soviet Troops Out in May?

PRAGUE (AP) — Persistent reports that Soviet troops will be withdrawn from Czechoslovakia by next spring, perhaps coupled with a change of plans to withdraw Soviet troops from the Czechoslovak Communist party leadership. The party's for Moscow. Western parties, especially the Italian Communist, are reported to have said they would not attend if Soviet troops remain in Czechoslovakia. By other unconfirmed accounts, a Soviet withdrawal is planned by March.

But Czechoslovak sources continued to put faith in reports originating in Budapest two weeks ago that have slowly filtered through Czech party channels. These reports said the Soviets are prepared to withdraw their forces by May 9, 1969.

On that day, a world meeting of Communist parties is planned.

Mediterranean Fleet Cut By Russians

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet Union has reduced its naval force in the Mediterranean, United States naval sources said in London today. They added the reduction might be seasonal and temporary.

"The Russians now have fewer warships in the Mediterranean than they had earlier in the year," said the sources. "In past years the Soviet Union has made seasonal withdrawals during the winter months."

They would not say whether Soviet strength was still above average for this time of year. They declined to give figures but described as "fairly accurate" a report in the London Times that Russian warships in the Mediterranean had dwindled to 33 ships from 50.

The British admiralty declined comment.

Russia now has only 17 surface warships in the Mediterranean, wrote Basil Gingell, Times naval correspondent. "The other vessels with them are supply ships or tugs."

Gingell said reports of 80 Russian warships in the Mediterranean during the autumn were exaggerated and that there never have been more than 50 of all kinds.

U.S. Warships End Black Sea Cruise

ISTANBUL (AP) — Two American destroyers left the Black Sea Thursday after a three-day cruise that brought protests from Moscow and stirred up controversy in Turkey.

The United States said the brief visit to Russia's southern doorstep by the Dyess and the Turner, two 3,500-ton members of the U.S. 6th Fleet, was a routine operation. But it was generally assumed that the cruise was prompted by the Soviet naval buildup in the Mediterranean.

The destroyers sailed through the Bosphorus into the Black Sea Monday morning and came back out early Thursday morning. Soviet ships and planes shadowed them during their cruise.

It was the second visit this year by U.S. destroyers to the Black Sea and the eighth in four years.

The Russians called the naval maneuver a provocation, a threat to peace and Soviet security, and a violation of the 1936 Montreux Convention which governs the use of Bosphorus, the entrance to the Black Sea.

Firemen Cut Service

LONDON (AP) — London's fire engines are unpollished, its fire stations unswept and littered, and only emergency calls are being answered.

It's a slowdown by 5,000 firemen in 120 stations who rejected a £1 ($2.60) wage increase offered by the Greater London Council. They make from £20 to £22 a week.

The Fire Brigade Union wants £2 to compensate for "compulsory overtime" caused by a shortage of 500 firemen.

Police will form special new squads to make spot checks of motorists entering and leaving the nation's main cities — for the first time since the Algerian war.

Israeli Jets Attack Arab Bridge, House

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI) — Four Israeli jets attacked a bridge and destroyed a house Thursday in a 25-minute air raid on Jordanian territory, Jordanian communications said. It was the fifth reported air attack in 12 days.

The fighting erupted 13 miles south of the Sea of Galilee along truce lines where repeated clashes have occurred since the six-day war in June, 1967.

ISRAELI HALF TRACK
The air attack was launched after 10 minutes of fighting between Jordanian troops and an Israeli half track, the Jordanian command said.

"This incident started when Israelis opened fire from the half track on Jordanian forces in the area of the Sheikh Hussein Bridge. Fire was returned and the Israeli vehicle destroyed."

HEBAN VALLEY

First Jerusalem reports on the fighting said Jordanian forces fired the first shots opening up with bazookas and light arms on an Israeli patrol in the area of the Hiban Valley settlement in the Hiban Valley. A resident of the settlement said Israeli artillery batteries retaliated by shelling an Arab guerrilla position on the east bank of the Jordan River.

ISRAELI ACCUSED

At the United Nations in New York, Israel was accused Thursday of "ruthless measures of arbitrary imprisonment" of Jordanian civilians under Israeli occupation.

A document circulated at UN headquarters complained specifically of the arrest of the wife of the Arab mayor of Jerusalem, Mrs. Rosh Al-Khatib, and two other Arab women. It said they were sentenced to three months in prison without trial because they were "merely exercising their lawful national duty to resist the Israeli occupation of their homeland."

In Jerusalem, Premier Levi Eshkol said Wednesday he would like to see 100,000 more Jews settled in the city but added that he "shouldered" at some statements by public officials on resettlement of occupied Arab lands.

"I would like to see another 100,000 Jews in Jerusalem," he told Parliament, "but wishes are one thing and reality is another."

Russian Woes No Strangers

MOSCOW (UPI) — Deputies had to be stopped because of the lack of material.

Another deputy asked why funds were not allocated to cities so as to account for new population increases.

HARD TO MAINTAIN

"We find it hard to maintain the existing services, not to speak about their extensions," he said.

The onslaught will have little effect. The economic plan has been approved where it counts — the Communist party and government leadership.

BUREAUCRATIC WOES

But sandwiched in between were blazes at bureaucratic blundering, unfair allocation of money to rival regions, poor roads and communications and general broadsides against centralized economic planning that would be familiar to many western mayor or governor.

S. A. Movsesyan, a deputy from Armenia, complained of "economic losses we sustained" because Moscow failed to supply the railroad freight cars demanded.

TO NO AVAIL

"We have written to various ministries but to no avail," he lamented.

"We have no construction material but, at the same time, works on construction sights had to be stopped because of the lack of material."

Another deputy asked why funds were not allocated to cities so as to account for new population increases.

Region-Wide Car Wash Saturday

Scout troops, Venturer companies and Rover crews are hoping to wash the United Red Feather-Red Cross appeal fund a little closer to the top with a region-wide car wash Saturday.

Car washes will take place between 9:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. at Cadboro Bay Village, Bob and Gar's service station, 195 Oak Bay Avenue, Pacific 66 and BA service station at Cadboro Bay, Shell Oil and Esso stations at Shelbourne and Ruby Road, from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at Safeway shopping centre in Esquimalt and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Tesco service station at Shelbourne shopping plaza.

Arbutus Scouts will be taking orders for sawn logs, $1 a load, at 383-5479 and 384-5071, in addition to washing cars for the appeal.

'Tommies' Can Like, Leave It

LONDON (AP) — You can try out the British Army on approval now. If you don't like it, you remain a civilian with four days' pay, amounting to $13, in your pocket.

A trial centre near Bath offers men a four-day look at the army to decide whether it's for them. It uses such enticements as assigned duty in jobs such as parachutist, tailor or cook.

"The scheme is designed to prevent the disenchantment with army life that comes to the square peg in a round hole," a defence ministry spokesman said Thursday.

Army Put on Alert As Brazil Simmers

From AP-Breuters

RIO DE JANEIRO (CP) — Military units were on alert early today as President Arthur da Costa e Silva conferred with top military aides in the aftermath of a stunning rejection by the usually-pliant Congress.

By a vote of 216 to 141, the Chamber of Deputies in Brasilia, the capital, resisted Thursday military demands that it permit the trial of Opposition Deputy Marcio Moreira Alves on charges of abusing his civil rights by criticizing the military on the floor of Congress.

CLOSE-DOWN?

There were reports the government might react by stripping Moreira Alves of his political rights anyway or close down Congress but there was no confirmation.

There were reports of widespread disagreement within the government and the military themselves on just what should be done in the face of the unexpected congressional vote. Because the government controls Congress and has 251 deputies to the opposition's 128 government floor leaders had been confident of victory.

There was no evidence of unusual security precautions at the army, navy or air force ministries, but lights burned past midnight at the palace where the president met with top civilian and military aides.

The government had expected smooth sailing for its proposal to have Moreira Alves tried by the Supreme Court after steam-rolling a congressional committee into recommending that the chamber grant permission for the trial.

It had been acting under pressure of the army, navy and air force whose leaders felt they had been insulted by speeches Moreira Alves made in the Chamber of Deputies Sept. 4, a few days after security forces arrested dozens of students in a raid on Brazilian University.

Domestic Stocks at New High

Rising Demand Gives Boom New Momentum

VANCOUVER - Domestic issues were strong with the common at 12 1/2 and the preferred at 17 1/2 - both new highs. Madill, another Island company advanced 1/2 to 11. Field's added 1/2 at 19 1/2. EDP was off 1/2 at 15.

In oils, Bata rose .25 to 4.60, and best advance in the mines was a move of .35 in Silver City to 1.55. Magnet and Pacific Asbestos were each up .20 while Ustica and Northlode lost similar amounts.

Banks-Steels Lead

TORONTO (CP) - The market posted its fifth successive gain in heavy trading.

The industrial index, which has been at an all-time high for the last three days, closed with a rise of .38 at 19.14.

Volume rose to 5,503,000 shares, compared with 5,100,000 Wednesday.

The strongest groups were banks and steels, which advanced by an average 2.33 per cent. Toronto-Dominion Bank was up 1 to 23, Dofasco to 23 1/2, Steelco to 27 1/2 and Royal Bank to 26 1/2.

The main evidence of strength, according to analysts, is the combination of rising prices with increasing volume.

Erle Flooring A gained 3/4 to 33, Fulcrum 3 to 30 1/4, Lehigh Instruments 2 1/4 to 4 1/4, Simpson 1 1/2 to 3 1/4 and Moore Corp. 1/2 to 3 1/2.

New Providence Development, the most active industrial, gained 10 cents to $2.30.

In golds, Dome rose 3/4 to $1 and Camflo 25 cents to $5.75. The group has been edging up in response to the demand for gold bullion on the free market.

Falconbridge Jumps

MONTREAL (CP) - The market lost ground at the close of active trading.

Falconbridge jumped 2 1/2 to 100 1/2 and Simpsom 1 1/2 to 37 1/2. Toronto-Dominion Bank, Molson

Big Oil Move

NEW YORK (AP) - The market went through another nervous Thursday, with an irregularly lower drift and trading heavy.

The Dow Jones industrial average closed with a loss of 56 at 977.13. At its best reading, the morning, the average was up 1.80. An hour before the close, it was down 2.24. So there was considerable paring of losses in the last 60 minutes.

Further reason for caution was observed in reports that the new administration of President-elect Nixon might try to reduce spending in all departments in order to achieve federal budget cuts and eventually a tax decrease.

The stock list was enlivened by some specially-situated issues. The most prominent of these was Sinclair Oil, which rose 1 1/2 to 136.

Sinclair was spurred by news that Atlantic Richfield had made a tender offer. Atlantic Richfield rose 3 1/2 to 124 1/2.

Share Offering Planned Soon By Restaurant

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

The latest Canadian restaurant chain about to become a public company is Hy's Restaurants Ltd., which has its Victoria operation in the Executive House and which is planning a second restaurant in the Hillside shopping centre.

Hy's new shares will be offered some time before the end of the year. The company has outlets in most western cities and is expanding into the east. The shares are expected to go on the market at about $5.

NEON'S NEW DEAL

Another deal for Neon Products which will take it further into the leisure time industry is announced by James Pattison, company president.

The Vancouver-based conglomerate is acquiring the assets of Travelair Trailer Manufacturing Ltd. of Edmonton in return for 194,946 shares of Neon that have a current market value of $6,750,000.

Travelair makes holiday trailers and truck campers. It is Neon's seventh acquisition since the company came into Pattison's control.

BETTER IN SPOTS

The outlook for newsprint is brighter than it has been for some time, but it may be three or four years before supply and demand in the pulp business get into line.

These comments were made by officials of B.C. Forest Products in Victoria this week when they gathered to pay tribute to Bert Barnes, manager of the Victoria sawmill operation, on his retirement this month after 43 years service with BCFP and its predecessor company.

Lumber and plywood sales continue to be very encouraging, not only in the domestic market but also in the Pacific rim countries with which BCFP does considerable business.

The market for Canadian lumber products in Australia was said to be exceptionally good.

As BCFP derives about half of its revenue from lumber products, it has done better than competitive firms in the forest industry in which the percentage is weighted in favor of pulp and paper.

Attending Thursday's board meeting were T. N. Beaupre, chairman, and Ian Barclay, president.

Beaupre, who is president and chief executive officer of Donair, is a former president of BCFP, made the journey from Montreal to attend the various functions.

CONTAINING INFLATION

Two large U.S. plywood companies are cutting their prices not because the market is slipping but because they are attempting to stop an inflationary market spiral.

The prices to be charged for sanded plywood by Georgia-Pacific Corp. and Weyerhaeuser Company have been lowered from $118 per thousand square feet to $110.

Plywood sheathing prices have not been changed.

ONE JOB ONLY

Two directors of the Bank of Nova Scotia did not stand for re-election as directors of National Trust Company this year.

They are F. B. Brown, vice-president, and John L. McCarthy of the Scotia Bank.

They had to make a choice between one or other because the 1967 Bank Act prohibits bank directors from being directors of other financial institutions.

PRESIDENT ABSENT

Annual meeting of Warner Investments will be held Monday in Vancouver, but company president and founder Ernest Warner will not be present. He is holidaying in Spain and will visit South Africa before returning to Vancouver.

Control Urged Over Dumping

OTTAWA (CP) — Senators studying draft legislation Thursday for direct appeal from a decision on whether goods are dumped. A tribunal to be set up would rule on whether dumping caused material injury to Canadian industry, but not on dumping itself.

Like members of the Commons committee which has already studied the draft and dumping act, Senator J. J. Connolly (L-Ontario) and some colleagues on the Senate banking and finance committee asked about appeals from dumping decisions.

C. D. Arthur of the finance department's economics division said there is no provision for direct appeal from a decision on whether goods are dumped. A tribunal to be set up would rule on whether dumping caused material injury to Canadian industry, but not on dumping itself.

Mr. Arthur said a complainant could test a customs official's no-dumping decision by arranging to import the same product at the same price and asking the government tariff board to make a ruling. He could then challenge the original customs decision.

Senators said that would be a prolonged and costly substitute for appeal.

Wheat Gift Refusal Surprises Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — A Paris statement that the Ivory Coast has spurned a gift of Canadian wheat caught officials by surprise here Thursday.

The statement, issued by the Ivory Coast embassy in the French capital, said the African country never has suffered from a scarcity of cereal and never has asked for wheat.

When the gift was announced Dec. 4, Canada said that it was in response to "urgent requests" from Ivory Coast to meet a food shortage. Fifteen thousand tons were consigned to the Ivory Coast and 20,000 tons to Niger.

UNANSWERED

An external affairs department spokesman said Thursday the government has received no indication from the Ivory Coast that would support the statement issued in Paris.

When Senator Paul Martin, former Canadian external affairs minister, was in Abidjan last week he reported to Ottawa that Ivory Coast officials were pleased that Canada had decided to accede to the request.

The external affairs spokesman said he understood the request for Canadian wheat was spontaneous on the part of the Ivory Coast.

The first shipment, of which 9,000 tons is for the Ivory Coast and 10,000 tons is for Niger, is scheduled to reach West Africa Dec. 20.

Value of the gift to the two countries is $2,600,000.

UK Balance Surplus Sparks Sterling Rush

LONDON (Reuters) — The British government disclosed Thursday a dramatic improvement in its trading situation and touched off a world demand for sterling.

The trade ministry announced that record overseas sales in November and a $14,000,000 cut in imports reduced the month's trade deficit to £17,000,000 ($44,200,000).

The finance ministry revealed that Britain achieved a $102,000,000 surplus in its overseas balance of payments between July and September.

IMMEDIATE REACTION

The immediate reaction in European exchange markets was a rush to buy the pound, prompting a foreign exchange dealer in Zurich to remark: "There is no selling rate for sterling—everyone is buying".

But the elation eased before the afternoon was out. Although the pound's U.S. dollar rate touched 2.3600 briefly, it closed at its lowest rate of the day, 2.3539.

Buyers seemed to have decided "that one swallow does not a summer make", one foreign exchange banker in London commented.

BOOST TO STERLING

Officials in Paris said the figures gave a much needed psychological boost to sterling. Banking officials in Brussels and Frankfurt said the figures pointed to a recovery in Britain's financial position.

The figures were cited by elated British government spokesmen as vindication of Prime Minister Wilson's weekend attack on rumor-mongers who had forecast a new financial catastrophe followed by ministerial resignations—including that of Wilson.

BANK WARNS

The Bank of England, which had anticipated the balance of payments surplus, warned Wednesday that there probably will be a deficit during the current quarter.

Thursday's figures showed exports and re-exports up by £35,000,000 ($81,000,000) to £28,000,000 ($1,308,000,000).

Imports were slashed to £651,000,000 ($1,632,500,000). And revenue from invisible trade the over-all deficit figure of £17,000,000, reached after including such as insurance and shipping, was the lowest since July.

On or Off Query Still Out

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Finance Minister H. R. V. Earle of Newfoundland says his department has been trying to find out whether the finance ministers meeting set for Ottawa next week "is on or off."

Earle said Thursday, in answer to questions about a report that the federal government might seek a postponement, "we would be inclined to agree."

Some ministers felt the finance ministers conference should be held in conjunction with a constitutional conference also set for next week but now likely to be postponed until February, according to reports in Ottawa.

"I think the two of them should be held together," Mr. Earle said. "But we've been checking all day trying to find out just whether it is on or off."

Texas Sets the Precedent

Transplant Law on Way

DALLAS (UPI) — The first law setting rules for organ transplants will be introduced in Texas, the state that leads the world in heart transplants, it was announced Thursday.

"Other states are looking to Texas before they introduce similar legislation," said the author of the bill, state representative Fred Orr, a Dallas Democrat.

Orr said it would let a physician determine when a patient was dead officially but would prohibit the doctor who certifies the death of a donor from participating in a transplant operation. The law would not prohibit murder victims from being used for transplants and would govern how a potential donor would consent to such an operation. transplant surgeons, would Orr said he believed doctors favor the bill, to be introduced Michael DeBakey and Denton in the state legislature this Cooley, famed Texas heart year.

Lowest Tender Chosen

Greater Victoria school board provisionally accepted a low bid of $160,799 Thursday for an addition to Macaulay elementary school in Esquimalt.

The tender, by Herb Bate Ltd. of Victoria, was the lowest of six which ranged as high as $173,848.

Original allocation to the last school construction referendum was $235,000. School board buildings grounds committee chairman Dr. Carron Jameson said the education department trimmed the maximum allowable amount to $195,000.

The addition, to be ready by next September, will include a four-room open teaching area, change rooms, lavatories, a library, two classrooms and administration space.

The department must give final approval.

MONTREAL (CP) — About 30 dissatisfied volunteer members of the Company of Young Canadians are meeting with Quebec directors of the federal organization in the hope of gaining a voice in decision-making.

The malcontents, who have been occupying the CYC's downtown headquarters since Monday, say they are rarely consulted about executive decisions, including spending.

"They can't logically refuse our demands," one CYC volunteer said at a news conference Wednesday. "We are merely asking that they (the executive) apply the principles upon which this organization was built."

At a separate news conference, the staff—professional social workers hired to supervise the work of volunteers on individual projects—said the volunteers

Serum Doctor Given Prison

MONTREAL (CP) — Dr. Andre Grenier, 39, was sentenced to three years in penitentiary Thursday following his conviction of criminal negligence in the deaths of three of his patients.

Last year, three persons who received injections of the doctor's "youth serum" made from fetuses taken from freshly-slaughtered ewes, died of gas gangrene.

The three victims, Normand Sauve, 46, Pierrette Riverin, 31, and Marie-Louise DeGrandpre, 74, all died after they were injected with the serum June 3, 1967.

Mr. Justice Ignace Deslauriers said in imposing sentence that Dr. Grenier had "dishonored his profession."

He sentenced the doctor to concurrent three-year terms on each of three criminal negligence charges.

Dr. Grenier was convicted of negligence Wednesday when a 12-man jury deliberated for nearly an hour before returning the guilty verdict.

Rigid CMHC Views Stall Housing Plan

By DESMOND BILL

A "rigid and inflexible" attitude by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation is forcing "entirely unacceptable" designs for the Rose-Blanshard low-rental public housing scheme.

That was the bad news City Manager Dennis Young gave to council's group A committee Thursday.

He said CMHC guidelines for public housing would create an "appalling situation," and he recommended against the city completing its agreement with the federal government on the scheme.

DELAY AVOIDABLE

Mr. Young said construction of the badly needed housing units would "not necessarily" be delayed by the city holding up the formal agreement.

But it would put the city in a stronger position to bargain with CMHC in order to change the rules, he said.

Committee agreed with Mr. Young and instructed him to begin negotiations immediately, if necessary taking the matter up with Ottawa.

NEW DISCOVERY

Mayor Hugh Stephen said after the meeting, "I don't believe that this problem can't be resolved satisfactorily."

Mr. Young said he discovered only Wednesday the limitations on design imposed by the CMHC insistence that contractors follow their guidelines to the letter.

The guidelines are forcing contractors "to propose a development that will be entirely unacceptable and anything but a credit to the environment of this community."

CARS OR PEOPLE?

He said one example was that the city recommended the public housing project have perimeter parking for cars, leaving the interior free for landscaping and recreational use.

But the CMHC guidelines specify that no housing unit should be farther than 150 feet from the spot where the tenant parks a car, and this would make it necessary to turn the interior of the development into a parking lot.

Mr. Young said, "It makes us wonder whether we are building a $2,500,000 housing unit to accommodate cars, not people."

PERHAPS TO OTTAWA

Mr. Young said local CMHC officials had been very co-operative and understanding about the city's attitude, but the trouble lay with regional officials.

He said he intended to meet immediately with CMHC representatives, but the matter might have to go to Ottawa to be settled.

Deadline for submission of design proposals on the scheme is now Feb. 6, but was originally set for Jan. 9. Mr. Young said there was still time to settle the differences for the February deadline to be met.

FLEXIBILITY

What will happen if CMHC refuses to change its specifications?

Mayor Stephen said that was a hypothetical question that could not be answered, and that "for the moment, I presume we can find some flexibility."

He added that "if mistakes are made, the city will have to live with them, and we have a right to make our views known so that mistakes won't be made."

Indians Rap Report, Deny Disadvantages

Saanich peninsula Indians will meet tonight in protest against a report which implies that some of their children are educationally disadvantaged.

Thomas Sampson, administrator of the Tsartlip Indian band near Brentwood, said the aim of the meeting was to let the public know what accomplishments had been made by peninsula Indians recently.

The report was written by a three-member team headed by Dr. Charles Galloway of the University of Victoria faculty of education. Dr. Galloway, UVic education professor Norma Mickelson and Daphne Birchfield of Tacoma spent four weeks last summer at Tsartlip Indian school on a program for pre-schoolers and older slow learners.

GIRLS AIDED TEACHERS

The program was established in co-operation with Mr. Sampson and others, and had the help of six teenage Indian girls who acted as teacher's aides.

In their report, published this fall, the university team reported varying degrees of success with the youngsters.

NONE IS PLEASED

The report made reference to "Indian, educationally disadvantaged children..."

Mr. Sampson declared Thursday: "None of us are pleased with the report. Some of the things in there just don't hold water."

The report seemed to suggest that many Indian children are educationally disadvantaged, Mr. Sampson said.

WEREN'T CONSULTED

"This just isn't the case," he said. Indians weren't consulted in the writing of the report, said the administrator.

"It's not fair to us. We've accomplished a lot which outsiders never hear of."

Dr. Galloway said Thursday that he and his co-workers wrote the truth as they saw it.

He noted that Indian parents were involved in the program, and that the educators later presented a videotape and slide record of the summer school program.

Tonight's meeting at 7 p.m. in Tsartlip school will be attended by representatives of the Indians' Saanich Educational Association and the four band

Teen Club Idea Spurned Despite Need

By NANCY BROWN

Teenagers have repudiated an attempt to launch a club for them in Central Saanich.

Less than a dozen turned up at a dance sponsored by Central Saanich Chamber of Commerce as a pilot project to provide facilities for young people in the district.

As far as the organizing committee is concerned, says chairman Gordon Ewan, efforts to help them will be dropped, and the energy and resources of the chamber put to other uses.

SPARKED ACTION

A recreational need survey at Claremont high school sparked the chamber's efforts.

More than half the student body returned questionnaires, saying that there is a lack of facilities for their age group in the district.

While many asked for such sporting facilities for swimming, ice hockey and other sports, many asked for a teenage club or drop-in centre.

CENTRE IN FUTURE

The chamber decided to hold the dance and start a pilot project to meet the immediate need, with the idea that a community recreational centre could grow later.

Teenagers undertook to plan and publicize the dance, while adults obtained a hall and some financial backing.

The lack of response, according to Mr. Ewan, can apparently be attributed to lack of interest in a self-help semi-autonomous club.

Meanwhile, in Langford, a Boy's Club is being organized, patterned after the Boy's Club of Victoria.

Open to boys from 10 to 20, it is being organized by 70-year-old Charles Willard, and 65-year-old James McVittie.

Membership will cost 25 cents each for the Wednesday and Saturday meetings which will be held in Our Lady of the Rosary Church Hall.

The club, once started will be run by the boys.

But Tests Continue

Cholera Likelihood Fades

Results of tests on a possible cholera victim will be available within two days but doctors are already confident he is not suffering from cholera.

HE HAD SUCH A SEVERE ATTACK

"He had such a severe attack of diarrhea that the captain thought it might be cholera and wired for advice," said a spokesman for the federal health department. The unidentified man is a crewman aboard the freighter Harmattan. He is in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Dr. L. J. Loftus of the health and welfare department said specimens from the seaman were still undergoing tests.

"We won't know for at least two days what caused the attack, until the tests are confirmed," he said, but added that the seaman did not have cholera.

He said there was a possibility the attack was caused by salmonella or another type of food poisoning, but the department could not afford to take chances.

The ship is quarantined off Royal Roads.

Cholera is described as a gastro-intestinal disease which is highly contagious. Characteristics are acute diarrhea and vomiting.

Centennial Square

Leaking Water Douses Fountain Illumination

The lights have gone out in the fountain in Centennial Square.

But it may still be lit up for Christmas. Victoria officials will investigate the feasibility of installing floodlights on City Hall to spotlight the water.

City Manager Dennis Young told a council committee Thursday that a leakage of water into the electrical system caused the shutoff.

He said there was a danger of electrical shock in keeping the lights working. Cost of repairing the damage is estimated at about $5,000.

Finance chairman Ald. Robert Baird said the city should "raise the roof" with the contractor who installed the wiring.

Mayor Hugh Stephen immediately nominated Ald. Baird "to go after" the contractor, but Mr. Young pointed out that nothing could be done until a consultant reported on the exact cause of the fault.

Familiar pro-shop scene soon to be changed

Joe Pryke Started in 1918 Says 50 Years Long Enough

A career as a golf professional which has spanned half a century will end within the next few weeks when Joe Pryke leaves the pro shop at the Gorge Vale Golf Club.

The date of his actual retirement is still uncertain, pending the selection of a successor.

"I'll probably be here at least until next month," Pryke said yesterday. "I'll be staying on until the new pro arrives."

Pryke's retirement ends a 22-year association with Gorge Vale and a career as a club pro which dates back to 1918.

Born in England but an Ontario resident when he was four years old, Pryke became an assistant professional at the Calgary Golf and Country Club when he was 15 years old. Since then, he has served in Edmonton at the Mayfair and Edmonton Golf and Country Clubs, at the Prince Rupert Golf Club and in the Victoria area at Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club in addition to Gorge Vale.

He went to Edmonton's Mayfair club as assistant pro to Tom Morrison in 1924 and two years later moved over to the Edmonton Golf and Country Club as pro, replacing Dunc Sutherland when the well-known Scotsman moved to Vancouver.

Pryke moved to Prince Rupert in 1930 to help build and organize the club there, and remained as club pro until 1934, when he moved to Vancouver Island to take over at Colwood following the death of Alex Marling.

Pryke remained at Colwood until 1942, began his association with Gorge Vale in 1946 after four years of war-time service.

Known as one of the better teaching pros in the business, Pryke was also an outstanding tournament golfer although he didn't get many chances to compete.

He has won the Western Canada Open and professional championships, was Alberta Open champion twice and won the Edmonton Open three times. He held the record at Mayfair for a long time with a 64, set the course record at Prince Rupert with a 63, held the record of 64 at the Edmonton Golf and Country Club and believes he still shares the record at Colwood with a 65.

His best round, however, was the 61 he shot at the par-72 Regal club in Calgary.

During his years at Gorge Vale, the list of well-known graduates from the Joe Pryke school grew long. It includes such as Bob Fleming, John Merriman and Bill Wakeham and it was a proud moment this year when two Gorge Vale Juniors, Goe Ferguson and Dave Mick, helped B.C. win the Canadian junior team championship.

"I've had many good ones," Pryke said when he was asked who he considered his most promising pupil, "but I guess I'd have to say that Bill (Wakeham) has as much potential as anyone."

THIS IS HOME

Pryke anticipates continuing his residence in Victoria, where he lives at 1170 Craigflower, and he doesn't intend to be completely idle, planning to carry on in some capacity as an instructor.

"I've got to do something," he says. "I'm not quite out to pasture yet."

Leafs Continue Climb Canadiens Boost Lead

Steady goalkeeping by John Bower and a first-period goal by Ron Ellis last night gave Toronto Maple Leafs a 1-0 victory over Philadelphia Flyers and a share of second place in the National Hockey League's East Division.

Leafs, who have won four and tied one of their last five games, caught New York Rangers and Boston Bruins but remained four points behind Montreal Canadiens, who continued their two-season domination of St. Louis Blues with a 5-4 victory in Montreal.

REST HELPS

The 44-year-old (?) Johnny Bower, making only his eighth appearance of the season, blocked 27 shots for his second shutout, the 37th of his NHL career.

Flyers, winless in 10 games in which they have scored only 12 goals, didn't get too many dangerous chances but Bower came through with several good stops to make the goal by Ellis enough.

Ellis scored with a 25-foot shot after Dave Keen had won a faceoff, the puck whizzing over Bernie Parent's shoulder.

RICHARD STARS

Henri Richard, playing some of the finest hockey of his career this season, led Canadiens to their win with his third and fourth goals of the season.

It wasn't as close as the score indicated, Canadiens being balked time and again by a brilliant Glenn Hall.

Hall was bombarded with 46 shots, 21 of them in the first period as the Blues somehow managed to escape with a 2-2 split in goals. Hall was superb in the third period, when the Blues twice managed to get within one goal.

Richard scored the 2-2 goal in and Gilles Tremblay scored the other Montreal goals. Craig Cameron (2), Tim Ecclestone and Camille Henry scored for the Blues.

It was the 11th time the two clubs have met, including four playoff games, and the 10th victory for Canadiens, who gained a tie in the other game.

In last night's other game, played before 4238 Oakland fans, the Seals handed Detroit

Seals, who fired 40 shots at Roger Crozier, were led by the Ted Hampson-Norm Ferguson-Gerry Ehman line.

Ferguson scored twice and provided one assist, Hampson scored once and made plays for three other goals and Ehman had a goal and two assists.

Gary Jarrett and Bill Hicke scored the other goals.

Shoemaker

Career Remains in Doubt 11 Months After Accident

By ROSS NEWHAN

LOS ANGELES (LAT) — On the 23rd day of 1968, in the second race at Santa Anita, a horse named Bel Bush encountered a traffic jam, became entangled in the pack and fell to the dirt.

Bel Bush was down only for a moment. The horse jumped up and trotted off. The jockey, however, remained motionless. Bill Shoemaker had suffered the first injury of his celebrated career.

Shoemaker, 37, had fractured a bone (the femur) in his right leg and one week later he underwent surgery. The fracture was repaired and a steel rod was inserted to strengthen the leg and accelerate the healing process.

Now, 11 months later and two weeks before another Santa Anita season opens, there is the rumor that Bill Shoemaker will never ride again or, that if he does, it will only be following a second operation, an additional wait of six months, maybe more.

The picture is distorted, but the rumor persists, prompting a thorough X-ray.

Shoemaker, who had won purses totalling $40,500,000, has been under the care of Dr. Robert Kerlan, who skillfully handled the arthritic elbow of rod was inserted to strengthen the leg and accelerate the healing process.

There were 17 consecutive riding championships at Santa Anita prior to the accident and there are 5,758 career victories, only 274 behind the all-time leader, Johnny Longenecker.

CAN'T TAKE CHANCES

Dr. Kerlan explained why it is necessary that the leg be 100 per cent before Shoemaker rides again.

"This is the type of occupation," he said, "which demands that you assume the horse can fall at any time. It might be the first time Bill rides or it might be the 100th horse."

"If you had a guarantee against the horse falling, then Bill could have ridden two or three months ago. As it is, however, the bone must be completely healed or you run the risk of irreparable injury."

FAN APPEAL

What may be the day's most interesting race, from a spectators' standpoint, is the 2.9 miles masters division race, which gets under way at 2:25. It has drawn more than 30 men who are more than 30 years of age and have been out of regular competition for more than five years.

The event will be handicapped on the ratio of five seconds for every year over 30.

Today is the last day in which entries will be taken and those wishing to participate may telephone their entries to the "Y" at 386-7511.

Cross-Country Meet Draws Large Entry

More than 200 entries have been received for Saturday's Victoria "Y" invitational cross country meet at Beacon Hill Park. Art Burgess, "Y" athletic director, said more entries are coming in and the number is expected to swell to more than 250.

Eight out-of-town teams, from the lower mainland and Vancouver Island, are entered along with the three local track clubs and 12 greater Victoria school teams.

The first of 11 events gets under way at 1 p.m., a 1.1 mile pee wee girls race. The final event, a 5.3 mile run for men, will start at 3:30 and is expected to take about 35 minutes.

TAB KELLOWNA

To Host Junior Meet

The 1969 Canadian junior golf championship will be played at Kelowna Golf and Country Club Aug. 25-30.

Confirmation of the dates was officially announced here by L. B. (Paddy) Kavanagh of Toronto, Royal Canadian Golf Association secretary.

It will be the first national golf event ever scheduled in Kelowna and Kavanagh said he was "most impressed with the facilities and the course, even though it was under a few inches of snow."

The inter-provincial junior team championship will be played in conjunction with the qualifying rounds Aug. 25-26.

Foul-Line Shooting Helps Leaders Win

Foul troubles proved costly last night for the last-place clubs in the Victoria Senior Men's Basketball League at Mt. Douglas High School.

Leading Labatts held on to their four-point margin over Red Lion Inn by defeating Colony Inn, 61-48, while Red Lions put on an impressive foul-shooting display to down Farmer Construction, 69-57.

Bill Wilson, Ed Steele and Bob Kidd all fouled out for Colony. Labatts made good on 21 of 33 attempts from the foul line and kept their own fouls reasonably in check, with Colony getting 19 chances and scoring 10 points.

TOP LEADERS

John Devlin, with 16 points, and Terry Shenton, with 15, led the leaders while Jim Cunningham had 13 points for Colony.

Farmers only allowed Lions 18 attempts from the foul line but the second-place club only missed once while Farmers hit on seven of 12 attempts.

Jack Lusk sparked Lions with 26 points, 15 in the first half when the motemen forged a 35-27 lead, picking up eight points in nine tries from the foul line.

COLONY (48) — Olla Goldsmith 5, Bill Wilson 3, Ed Steele 2, Jim Cunningham 13, Wayne Allen 6, Bob Kidd, Mike Salter 5, Karl Oederlat 4, Gary Woodburn 3.

Bashful, But Proud

Leanne Pepper was a bit wary about having her picture taken but she'll remember Thursday for a long time. She was with her Dad, Bob, and grandparent, Howard on fishing trip off Trial Island. OUTDOORS with Alec Merriman

Fishermen who have braved this week's miserable weather have been getting in on this year's a-little-better-than-usual winter salmon fishing.

Oak Bay-guide Howard Pepper reports anglers have been getting 14 to 16-pounds in Fiddle Reef waters and outside the Chain Islands. Few have been venturing as far as Trial Island.

The protected waters inside Pedder Bay itself and in the shelter of Secretary Island off Sooke have been giving up some nice springs. The entrance to Esquimalt Harbor and from Brodie Ledge to Albert Head have been other good spots. Meagre checks by fisheries department indicate boats from Sidney to Sooke have been averaging better than one spring to a boat.

In Saanich Inlet springs to 18 pounds are still being caught, mainly on herring strip, with late afternoon and evening best times.

Grise and the odd spring are being taken off Willis Point. In Finlayson Arm, anglers are coming in with limits and near limits of springs, jacksprings and grise. The waters just beyond Goldstream Island are the most productive. Big fish of the week was landed by guide Gordy Lamont, a 22½-pounder on Minnow-Traser.

East side of Tent and Kuper Islands and Portier Pass waters have been giving up springs.

Fish and wildlife conservation officers swooped down in a blitz enforcement raid on hunters in Nimpkish-Campbell River area last weekend. After day and night checking, they came up with more than 20 violators.

Sad to report, most violations were result of plain and dangerous carelessness... loaded guns in a car. Next most common violation was possession of untaxed deer. And the saddest part of all was that most violators were hunters who had travelled from southern Island areas—Victoria, Port Alberni and Nanaimo.

With Vancouver Island deer hunting closed, except for north of Campbell River—which has this weekend to go—wildlife biologists have released results of road checks this year.

The Victoria area—1271 hunter days resulted in a harvest of 55 bucks, 45 does and 44 fawns, for an 11.5 per cent success ratio compared with 16.3 per cent success in 1967 and 13.4 per cent in 1966.

The Cowichan area—1720 hunter days brought 125 bucks, 125 does and 78 fawns. The success ratio of 19.1 per cent compared to 18.2 per cent in 1967.

The Chemainus area—1061 hunter days produced 36 bucks, 62 does and 63 fawns for 15.2 per cent success as compared to 16.9 per cent in 1967 and 17.9 per cent in 1966.

The Northwest Bay area—1412 hunter days, 57 bucks, 48 does, 37 fawns, 142 total, 10.1 per cent success, 12.8 per cent in 1967, 13.2 per cent in 1966.

The Ash River area—1318 hunter days, 62 bucks, 42 does, 39 fawns, 143 total, 10.8 per cent success, 14.3 per cent in 1967, 15.7 per cent in 1966.

The Wolf Lake area—1600 hunter days, 142 bucks, 114 does, 47 fawns, 303 total, 18.9 per cent success, 12.7 per cent in 1967, 11.8 per cent in 1966.

The Campbell River area—Two weekends yet to be included, 4015 hunter days, 631 bucks, 439 does, 232 fawns, 1322 total, 32.9 per cent success, 34.6 per cent in 1967.

Just back from a Gang Ranch hunt are Bill Pitts, Mark Pitts, Gary Moss, Tom Bligh and C. (Barrell) Gallant, who bagged six mule deer, the biggest a five-point, 263-pounder.

Victoria Fish and Game Club will hold its annual Christmas turkey shoot at its Goldstream grounds Saturday and Sunday, from 10 a.m. until dusk each day. Trap shooting, 22-rifle target shooting, lucky wheels and lucky circles and refreshments will all be held to provide fun for the entire family.

South Vancouver Island Rangers will continue its ham and turkey shoot at its Luxton Road grounds Sunday, starting at 10 a.m., with running deer rifle shoots and trap shooting.

Victoria Fish and Game Club members will have two important discussions at Monday's meeting at the Goldstream clubhouse... support or non-support for doe shooting and a proposal to withdraw from the B.C. Wildlife Federation.

Duke, a Chesapeake pup owned by Herman Jobis won first place in the puppy stakes at Vancouver Island Retriever Dog Club trials Sunday.

Al Harrington's black Labrador, Guy, finished second, Graeme Millar's black Labrador, Ben, came third and Tammy, a black Labrador owned by Frank Albany, placed fourth.

Certificates of merit were awarded to Marc Bell for his yellow Labrador, Odon, and Ralph Ridley for his black Labrador, Knight.

The junior stake was won by Alec Merriman with his black Labrador, Little Jo. Graeme Millar was second with Ben. No other dogs completed the junior tests.

In the qualifying stake, Hunter Smith placed second with his black Labrador, Go Go, and in the open stake, Dick Bayne placed third with his black Labrador, Tanya.

European Hockey President Opposes Open Tournament

TORONTO (CP) — A proposal that the world amateur hockey championship be made an open tournament, with Canada represented by either Toronto Maple Leafs or Montreal Canadiens of the National League, has drawn opposition from one of the most powerful figures in European hockey.

J. F. (Bunny) Ahearne of London, president of the European Hockey Federation, made his stand in a telephone interview with Milt Dunnell, sports editor of The Star.

"What good would it do to change the rules that apply to 29 nations just to accommodate one nation—Canada," Ahearne said.

"I'm not concerned about the future of hockey in Europe. I am concerned about the future of hockey in Canada. Now tell me, what good would it do to Canada hockey to have Leafs, Canadiens or any other professional team represent Canada in a world amateur tournament?"

"I've told Canadian hockey people time and again that they keep worrying about not beating Russia. Look back over the records. They haven't been doing too well against Czechoslovakia and Sweden, either."

Ahearne says sending a professional team to the world championships would remove a main incentive for Canadian youths to play amateur hockey. "The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has a registration of 200,000 players. As I understand it, professional hockey does not expect to drain off more than 100 players per year."

"What happens to all the other boys who have been playing hockey and do not turn pro? There's your problem. There is no incentive for them to continue. Now Canada would close one of the few doors—remove one of their final ambitions—to play in the world tournament of the Olympic Games. I can't see it happening."

"Your people spend too much time worrying about what happens in two weeks of the year, during the world tournament. They don't spend enough time worrying over what happens in the other 50 weeks."

"Poor old Britain went through the same thing in soccer. The pupils were beating the teacher. Your people will have to do what Britain did in soccer—correct the interior faults first."

"Canada has the youth. It has the climate. It has the ice rinks. It also has something it should get rid of—an attitude of 'this is our game; nobody can show us.'"

"In my opinion, Canada's problems are at home."

Butlin said that while most hockey teams in Canada are having a difficult time financing themselves, resorting to raffles, bingo and car draws, a small fortune is being wasted on the national team, which hasn't got a National Hockey League-calibre player in its lineup.

As an example of how the taxpayers' money is being wasted, Butlin said that two weeks ago the Ottawa-based Eastern national team flew to Winnipeg for a Friday night game with the Winnipeg-based Western national team. On Saturday the Eastern team flew to Quebec for an exhibition game, then flew back to Winnipeg Monday for another exhibition game with the western team.

Grant to Nationals

'Down the Drain'

CALGARY (CP) — The federal government's $200,000 grant to Canada's National Hockey team is just pouring taxpayers' money down the drain, Ron Butlin, president of the Canadian Hockey Association said Thursday.

Butlin said in a press release he is all for government assistance for a national team, but giving money to the current team is a farce.

NOT THE ANSWER "You could give this team $2,000,000 and they are still not going to win a thing," he said.

"I believe the minister of health and welfare, John Munro, was caught in a real squeeze by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association."

"The CAHA has failed miserably in producing a contender in world hockey, but with Canada housing the world championships in 1970 the national team could hardly fold."

Coach Fit—To Be Tied

WINNIPEG (CP) — Jackie McLeod of Canada's national hockey team says he has had physical fitness experts up to his hips.

"I'm sick and tired of reading all these comments about our conditioning," he said in an interview Thursday.

McLeod, coach and general manager of the national squad based in Winnipeg, was commenting on a Calgary statement by Lee Coyne, the team's fitness adviser.

"People in Canada... Coyne included, are really missing the boat," said McLeod. "There is just no way that we can put in six hours of training techniques into one day."

"Look, a kid gets up and heads for school first thing in the morning. Generally, he gets out of school at 5:30 p.m. and goes directly to practice."

"At eight o'clock when practice ends, the guy has to face his studies, which normally entail three hours."

Age and Creaking Joints Make Comeback Unlikely

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Ben Hogan, four-time winner of the U.S. Open, twice winner of the Masters and former PGA and British Open titlist, hasn't played a competitive round of golf since 1966.

And he won't again unless the conditions are perfect.

Hogan retired from competitive golf in 1955. But he entered playing in an occasional tournament with his shotmaking ability, which seemed to lose neither its distance nor accuracy.

But a combination of age—Hogan is 56—and physical ailments forced him to quit. He had a shoulder. Hogan will return in six weeks for a checkup.

His left kneecap is ailing. But Hogan said the doctors advised no surgery for it—just more time to heal.

Non-Catholics Obvious— They're Dead

By PATECK MAREY

BELFAST (Reuters) — In the Falls district of this Northern Ireland capital they say you can tell a Protestant from a Roman Catholic just by looking.

Not that many Protestants ever visit Falls because this is the area set apart for Roman Catholics to live their separate lives within the boundaries prescribed by history.

"The only Protestants here are dead ones," a taxi driver said, jerking his thumb at the city cemetery on Falls Road where Roman Catholics and Protestants are admitted impartially.

ALL OVER ULSTER

This pattern of segregation by creed is repeated all over Northern Ireland, or Ulster as it is known. Here religious feuds of the 17th century still burn brightly.

Ever since Ireland split up, with the South gaining independence and the North staying tied to Britain, Ulster's Roman Catholics have failed to settle down under the governing Protestant majority.

CIVIL RIGHTS BATTLE

Roman Catholic demands for better housing, employment and voting opportunities exploded two months ago in a civil rights battle that made the rest of Britain suddenly sit up and take notice.

Segregation appears to be largely a voluntary affair.

"Neither side will mix," said city housing officer John Lambie. "We once tried putting up two housing developments, each with Catholic and Protestant mixed 50-50.

"There was such a flood of transfers that within four years one was 100 per cent Catholic, the other was 100 per cent Protestant," he said.

One way of telling a Roman Catholic area is that it often looks poorer.

Another way to tell an area is the names on street fronts. Irish-Catholic Sullivans, McKins and McKennas compared with Johnsons, Scotts, and Coopers of Protestant districts.

Only at the higher end of the social register does segregation die out.

"Once they reach the upper middle class," Lambie said, "they don't seem to care what religion their neighbor is so long as the district is smart."

Fines for Errant Miners Sought in Law Changes

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Interior Secretary Stewart Udall called Thursday for tough coal mine safety laws including fines for careless miners. He said accidents, not disasters, caused most mine deaths.

"According to our preliminary figures so far this year, 203 of the 290 fatalities recorded in underground soft coal mines were in the accident rather than the disaster category," Udall said.

"In other words, nearly 70 per cent of the fatalities were caused by accidents rather than disasters, which are the kind of catastrophes that occurred at Marjinton, West Virginia, which killed 78 miners last month. That tragedy prompted the conference of about 100 government, industry and labor leaders to which Udall spoke.

Merger for Trio

CALGARY (CP)— Three Alberta-based companies gave conditional approval to merger plans which would create a corporation with annual sales exceeding $1,000,000,000.

United Westburne Industries Ltd. hopes to acquire all outstanding shares of Commonwealth Petroleum Services Ltd. and Tri-n-o Transportation Ltd., both of Calgary.

Udall's proposals would make miners liable for fines up to $500 if they violated mine health or safety standards. Few of the rules were spelled out but they included a ban on smoking or using unshielded lights underground. Both are forbidden in most mines now but violators are not subject to fines.

Udall's proposals, all designed to strengthen a Johnson administration mine safety bill which will go before Congress next year, also would provide stiffer penalties for mine operators who violate standards. To prevent roof collapses, they would specify a roof control plan. Health controls and research also would be provided.

Husband's Mail Box Calls Win Divorce for His Wife

LONDON (AP) — A 30-year-old housewife won a divorce Thursday because her husband shouted reminders through the mail box three times a week that he was going to make love to her that night. Sylvia Hall, mother of three, said her husband, Raymond, 34, had a rigid timetable of sexual relations three times a week, and when he left the house for work those mornings he would yell a reminder through the letter box on the front door. The judge ruled cruelty.

Gunrunner Eyes Wind

BELFAST (CP) — The weather has turned windy in the Northern Ireland area but enthusiastic backers of the Clydevalley project say this will not interfere with plans for the old gunrunner's Saturday reception.

Now anchored about two hours steaming time from her planned point of arrival at Larne after a trip from Canada, the 82-year-old iron-hulled ship may leave earlier than scheduled for the reception place if the weather continues unpleasant.

Larne is about 25 miles north of Belfast where on Thursday Northern Ireland's Unionist prime minister, Capt. Terence O'Neill, was given a vote of confidence by his MPs.

O'Neill had fired William Craig, MP for Larne, from the post of home affairs minister earlier this week. The prime minister generally was caught up in a potentially delicate situation as a result.

Sam Campbell of nearby Whitehead, major figure behind the Clydevalley project, said in an interview that MPs finally rallied to O'Neill because they did not want a split in their party.

Campbell said he does not think Catholics will be among those greeting the Clydevalley, which ran guns and ammunition in 1914 to supporters of Northern Ireland's continued connection with Britain.

One-Man Action Urged on Pollution

OTTAWA (CP) — A distinguished professor and member of the federal fisheries research board called Thursday for the federal government to designate one man as responsible for action against pollution.

Professor Henri Favre, University of Montreal dean of science and a board member since 1965, said the committee approach now being followed by federal agencies works well for study of the problem.

But when it comes to taking action, "what you need is one man clearly responsible for doing something."

He backed up public servants of the board and the fisheries department who laid claim to the Senate science committee to a major place in the battle against pollution.

The two fisheries agencies also urged that the fisheries department be given greater powers to prevent pollution.

"We would be in a better position if we had a little more government authority," Dr. A. W. H. Needler, deputy fisheries minister, told the Senate committee. "I think this would be desirable."

Dr. F. R. Hayes, fisheries board chairman, told the committee that the best vehicle for water pollution control is the Fisheries Act. Professor Favre echoed him, pointing to the board's long experience and body of expert scientists in biological aspects of water.

The committee heard evidence from the two agencies that in 1966 the federal government designated the energy, mines and resources department as the leading body to frame and co-ordinate water programs for Canada.

A committee had been formed including the many federal agencies with water resources responsibilities. But the fisheries department had taken the lead in proposing an "adequate, integrated, interdepartmental program of anti-pollution research and control" before the other agencies put forward their plans.

LARGE INTERESTS

The other two federal agencies with large interests in the field—energy, mines and resources and national health and welfare—had then advanced their suggestions.

This resulted in a "major national proposal" now being put into a report to be unveiled in a few months.

At the same time, the energy department was proposing that a Canada water act be placed before Parliament to provide co-ordinating machinery at the federal and provincial level.

Chemical Fire Rages In Dockside Vessel

NEW YORK (AP) — A British freighter burned at her East River pier in lower Manhattan Thursday, flames raging out of control for hours between her decks. No one was injured.

The 9,300-ton Manchester Miller developed a list to her left as more than 150 firemen poured tons of water into her blazing holds.

The ship arrived Tuesday from Newport News, Va., and was to have sailed Thursday night for her home port of Manchester, England.

Flames broke out in mid-morning in chemicals stored in the triple-decked No. 3 hold and spread through the stern of the ship and into the crew's quarters.

Presence of the chemicals led firemen initially to fear explosions. However it later was determined that the chemicals were of a non-hazardous nature, containing sulphur.

The Manchester Miller carried a crew of 52. It took nearly seven hours to bring the flames under control.

Liberian Tanker Explodes

AMSTERDAM (Reuters) — At least 12 men were injured early today, two of them seriously, when the Liberian tanker Diana exploded while unloading a cargo of crude oil at fog-shrouded Mobil Oil dock facilities in this Dutch port.

Firemen aided by a fireboat reported they had brought the blaze aboard the 33,739-ton tanker under control and were playing hoses on the ship to keep it cool.

A Mobil Oil spokesman said the exact cause of the fire, which sent flames leaping skywards after a series of explosions amidship, was not immediately known.

However, he said, a preliminary investigation seemed to point to a leak in a pipe used to unload the vessel under high pressure.

Vibrant Legend Dies

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Dahling" is dead.

Tallulah Bankhead, whose hoarse, throaty drawl, free-flowing hair, constant cigarette and irreverent life style were her trademarks, died Thursday at the age of 65.

A hospital spokesman said cause of death was double pneumonia and respiratory failure complicated by emphysema. Death was perhaps hastened by the flu sweeping New York City.

100 CIGARETTES DAILY

Miss Bankhead, who lived in Manhattan for the last few years, had been under periodic treatment for emphysema, which was aggravated by 100 cigarettes a day.

Miss Bankhead was a star who became a legend — her name, her voice, her famous "dahling," and stories told about her and by her were known throughout the North America and Europe for four decades.

When she was 14 she won an Alabama beauty contest and two years later her father let her go to New York to become an actress.

For four years she was a moderately successful unknown but in 1923 she opened in London in a play called "The Dancers," and for the next eight years Miss Bankhead was the toast of London society.

She starred in Camille, Fallen Angels and Let's Be Gay before returning to Broadway and a string of theatrical successes.

She also went to Hollywood but did not make a real success in movies until her performance in 1944 in Alfred Hitchcock's "Lifeboat."

Her last Broadway performance was in Tennessee Williams' "The Milk Train Doesn't Stop Here Any More" in 1963.

She liked baseball and owned two shares of the old New York Giants. In 1937, she stopped drinking to help them win. During the Second World War, she again became a teetotaler to help the Allied cause and a friend, recalling the Giants' "Always Broke," said to her: "For god's sake, Tallu, start drinking again or we'll lose the war."

Miss Bankhead was known for her generosity and extravagance and used to say she was "always broke." But she negotiated her own contracts and they usually contained a clause which gave her a percentage of

Victoria Knew Her

Movie actress Tallulah Bankhead, 65, died in New York Thursday, two years after the death in Victoria of her close friend Mrs. Dola Cavendish.

Before Mrs. Cavendish's death Dec. 9, 1966, Miss Bankhead was a frequent visitor to Victoria. She often stayed at the Colwood home of Mrs. Cavendish, who was one of the 10 children of former B.C. premier James Dunsmuir.

Candy Pledge Lured Victim

NEWCASTLE, England (Reuters) — An 11-year-old school girl, one of two girls accused of murdering two small boys, testified Thursday she stood in a trance as she watched her friend strangle a three-year-old.

"I was just in a kind of trance," Mary Bell told a court here. She said her friend, Norma Bell, 13, who is no relation, lured the boy into a vacant lot with a promise of candy.

Then Norma grabbed the boy by the throat and squeezed until her fingertips went white, Mary said.

"I tried to pull her off, but she just went mad. She just screamed."

Later, she said, they visited the body and Norma started cutting off some of the boy's hair with a pair of scissors.

"I was just standing and looking," she said. "It was as though some glue was pulling us down. I couldn't move."

Mary and Norma, who live next door to each other in this northern industrial city, have both pleaded not guilty to murdering Martin Brown, 4, on May 25, and Brian Howe, 3, on July 31.

Mary alleged Norma told Brian a woman would give him candy if he came into the vacant lot with them.

Later, Mary testified, Norma told Brian to lie down and said "You have got to lie down for the lady to come with the sweets." Mary said Norma then grabbed the boy by the throat and strangled him while he struggled.

Earlier the court heard evidence that Norma was sub-normal, easily led by more intelligent people and not likely to know that she could kill people by strangling them.

Diversions to Cuba Not So Bad

Passengers Fed Steaks, Juice, Beer

MIAMI (AP) — Passengers aboard a hijacked jetliner ate steak in Cuba Wednesday while their calm hijacker and his woman companion waited for 6½ hours in a room at Havana airport before they were taken away by Cuban authorities.

Seven crew members and all but two of the 32 passengers aboard the inaugural flight of a Nashville-to-Miami Trans-World Airlines route, returned to Miami Wednesday night aboard separate planes.

Two passengers, country singer Tex Ritter and professional golfer Mason Rudolph, said the Cubans fed the stranded travellers grapefruit juice, beer, steaks and sandwiches during their nine-hour stay.

"At the end of the day you decide if they were pretty nice people. I think that's what they had in mind," Ritter said.

He said FBI agents showed him pictures of Eldridge.

Cleaver, 33, earned a substantial sum of money from his book, Soul On Ice, which he wrote while in prison. He has not been seen publicly since Nov. 24, when he fled to avoid being returned to jail as a parole violator.

A passenger and hostess Susan Brandt said the woman appeared to be about six months pregnant.

Cleaver's wife, Kathleen, said, "Officially, the last time I saw Eldridge was Nov. 24. But unofficially, I saw him last night."

Mrs. Cleaver, 23, said her husband did not intend to return to prison in San Francisco, adding: "He'll be assassinated if he goes back. They tried to kill him three times before, in prison..."

She scoffed at published reports that she had withdrawn $33,000 from a bank last week for her husband's use. "I've got $45 in the bank and $30 in my pocket," she said.

Omissions Make Headline

GENEVA (AP) — "No Jews, no Negroes, no Democrats and no women in Richard Nixon's cabinet." That was the headline on the front page of Tribune de Geneve which published pictures of the 12 appointees.

The paper printed news agency reports on the Washington announcement on the back page without any editorial comment.

Son's Shooting of Father Ruled Defence for Mother

QUESNEL (CP) — A coroner's jury ruled Thursday that the shooting death of Elmer Andrew Johnson Oct. 4 was justifiable homicide.

The jury found Johnson died of gunshot wounds at his home six miles north of this central British Columbia community. He was shot with a .22-calibre rifle discharged by his 16-year-old son.

The jury was unanimous in agreeing the boy was justified in his action as the life of his mother, Mrs. Rosetta Johnson, was in jeopardy when the shooting occurred.

Earlier, the attorney-general's department entered a stay of proceedings in the case.

Thoughts Miles Away, Until Applause

Bubble Act a Dream

By DON COLLINS

Once upon a time (and twice on Saturday) there was a fair young maiden all bottled up in a big bubble out there on the cold, cold ice of Memorial Arena.

When, she wondered, would some Prince Charming come along and take her away from it all?

A word of warning to all those Princes Charming who might be lining up: The idea that would set her free might drown you. The bottle is full of water.

"At first I used to choke on the water myself, but now I'm used to it," says diminutive, blonde Glenda Rehner.

You may well wonder what a cute 19-year-old from Granada Hills, Cal., is doing out there in that bubble, kicking and turning somersaults and behaving in other unusual ways.

So did Glenda at first. "When they first told me I was going to be in it and I saw it sitting there backstage, I was scared. The thing was absolutely spooky," she says.

The answer is a little intriguing. With an extensive background in modelling and modern dance, and only five years of skating experience, Glenda was enlisted by the Ice Capades as a professional skater. She was handed a bikini and told she was a ballet swimmer in a glass bubble.

* * *

Someone saw the stunt on a Hollywood movie lot and decided to use it in Ice Capades this year after a suitably small girl was found. Glenda, smallest member of the skating chorus line at 103 pounds "and not quite five-feet-three," was it.

Her performance, which lasts about three minutes, is part of the exotic act that closes the first half of the current show, which ends here Saturday.

But counting her waiting

Collins, Glenda and bubble where she works time backstage and the average of 10 performances a week, she spends about one hour and 20 minutes a week as a girl in a bubble. Which is still somewhat short of the 30 hours she spends on skates each week as a member of the chorus line and in practice sessions with Peter Gibbons of Guelph, Ont. The two are hoping to create a new act.

On Thursday, Glenda was battling a bad case of indigestion, but was game to the last.

"It's sometimes pretty chilly when you get out of that bubble, but the water is really warmer than bath water," she says.

What does a fair young maiden think about when she is out there on the ice, separated from all those people by nothing more than the bubble and a scant bikini? "Lots of things," she says. "I try to concentrate on the music, although it sounds so far off when my head is underwater and not up there in the little bit of breathing space I have at the top."

"And it's a funny thing — the first time I heard applause for me alone was when I was in that bubble. It was cheering, but it sounded like it was miles away. It was all so strange."

* * *

Today after almost four months, the bubble bit is a snap for Glenda. She can swim her ballet number and daydream about the skating routine she is working on with Peter.

She says it's nice to be a star, even if you are sort of held captive in a water-filled bubble, but the constant travelling gets tiring.

"My main goal in life is to get married and raise a family," she confided.

And who is to be the lucky young man to take her away from it all?

"I have absolutely nobody," she whispered.

PNE Gets Sunday Opening

VANCOUVER (CP) — City council has approved opening of the annual Pacific National Exhibition on Sundays, PNE officials announced Wednesday. A spokesman said the PNE has been added to the city's list of legal Sunday entertainment, meaning the fair next year will run 17 days instead of the usual 14.

American Bank Buys In LONDON (Reuters) — National and Grindlays Bank of London announced Thursday it sold 40 per cent of its shares to the First National City Bank of New York.

The New York bank is understood to have paid just under $40,000,000 for its new holding in National and Grindlays, which started its career as the National Bank of India in Calcutta in 1853.

National and Grindlays will increase its share capital by about $54,600,000.

Control of National and Grindlays will remain firmly in British hands and it will continue to be London-based, bank spokesmen stressed.

Bi-Bi Raid Claim Probed

OTTAWA (CP) — An RCMP spokesman said Wednesday night the force was investigating charges by a Montreal newspaper reporter that she was questioned at home Tuesday by RCMP officers on how she obtained parts of the unpublished third report of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism.

Lyndene Gagnon said Wednesday in a report in the Montreal daily newspaper La Presse that she was questioned by two "chattering" policemen who asked questions for an hour and a half. She said she refused to reply.

Canadian Wins 'Bravos' As Churchill

LONDON (CP) — Canada's 10 minutes on stage" he felt John Colicos, cheered by a full house after Thursday night's British premiere of the controversial play Soldiers, is both hailed and criticized in first newspaper reviews of the production.

Colicos is credited with a "towering performance" as Winston Churchill by Peter Lewis of The Daily Mail, who says the Canadian actor "held the theatre spellbound."

But The Daily Telegraph's John Barber says that "Mr. Colicos' Churchill is an artistic fraud," though also an "astounding impersonation."

"OTHERS DOMINATE HIM" "The other actors on the stage, by speaking naturally, dominate him," The Telegraph critic writes.

"Behaving like themselves, they are alive. Enslaved by his muckraking, Mr. Colicos is a waxwork."

Irving Wardle of The Times says much of the play "serves only as a pretext for showing John Colicos' Churchill in action."

UNLIKELY TO OFFEND Despite Soldiers' controversial character, The Times' verdict is that the Rolf Hochhuth play "is unlikely to offend anyone... and is full-bloodedly theatrical."

Shoots of "bravo" at the first-night production were for Colicos, and followed what The Telegraph called "moderate applause" after the curtain fell on the play itself.

The Toronto actor said later in his dressing room that "after sure his pre-performance confidence was justified.

"We gripped them (the audience), we absorbed them, and hailed and criticized in first newspaper reviews of the production."

A spokesman for the New Theatre said the play would continue there "indefinitely."

The play analyses the alleged role of Churchill in such Second World War events as the plane-crash death of Polish Gen. Wladyslaw Sikorski.

WIDE PUBLICITY Since arriving in London for the production, Colicos has been given wide publicity by newspapers fascinated at how the actor from Toronto would handle the demanding role of Britain's wartime prime minister.

There were curtain calls for Colicos and the rest of the cast.

The 39-year-old performer had expressed the wish that Soldiers, which also deals with such delicate issues as the bombing of Dresden, be judged by Britons on the basis of its theatrical value and not as an "international incident."

CHURCHILL MALIGNED Twenty months ago the board of the National Theatre refused to produce the play because it "grossly maligned" Churchill.

Contrasting sharply with expressions of enthusiasm at the premiere was a comment by the late British leader's grandson, writer Winston Churchill.

He told reporters that the play "is an infamous libel, especially on the dead."

Church's Birthday Marked With Party at Union Bay

By MARY MOORE

UNION BAY — There was a 62nd birthday party in Union Bay recently, when the guest of honor was a church.

Built in 1906 by a few pioneer families, it was at first a Presbyterian Church. In 1925 it became Union Bay United Church after church union was approved.

Visitors came from Cumberland and Denman Island to share a congregation anniversary supper with local churchgoers. They were welcomed by Mrs. J. Stewart, president of the Ellen McKay Circle, and Lois Nelson, president of the Evening Circle.

Rev. Douglas Archibald, minister of the three-point charge, and Mrs. Archibald, received a buttonniere, a corsage from Mrs. Ed Sawchuck. Mrs. Sawchuck also provided table decorations.

The Ellen McKay and evening circles shared in preparing a pot-luck supper. Members of the Evening Circle served tea and coffee.

W. S. Wood was chairman for the evening and welcomed the 50 guests who included a pioneer couple, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Magnone. They were the first couple to be married in the church. They celebrated their 59th wedding anniversary on July 15.

Mrs. Magnone, with her sisters, Mrs. Frances Stasek and Mrs. Nellie King, represented the pioneer family of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew McKay who worked to build the original church.

Mrs. McKay, now 100, lives with her daughter.

Mrs. Magnone has established a record of membership in the original Ladies' Aid groups and then the Ellen McKay Circle, of more than 50 years.

Entertainment included a singing led by Mrs. Kay William Royston, accordion solos by Jacqueline Keenan, and group singing by Annie Campbell, Daphne Hamilton, Myrtle Adamson, and Lois Nelson.

Mrs. Williams also showed a colored film about Japan.

Mr. Archibald spoke about the history of Cumberland and Union Bay churches which he said, had carried on even under difficulties.

Mrs. Nelson, representing the two circles, presented the proceeds of the supper to church treasurer Mrs. Paul Grundy.

Port Alberni

City Symbol Makes Debut

PORT ALBERNI — Port Alberni has adopted a new city symbol incorporating the forest industry, which forms the base of its economy, and the four points of the globe to which forest products are shipped.

The crest, which is appearing on city vehicles, stationery, advertising and buildings, will replace two former symbols which designated Alberni and Port Alberni.

NEW DESIGN

City officials said it was felt that to retain the old Port Alberni symbol and eliminate the one for Alberni was unfair as both cities were merged into the identity of a new city.

Consequently Robert Wilson of Victoria was asked to draw up a design for a new one.

Mr. Wilson was born and educated in Montreal. He left there in 1957 and worked in the U.S. for six years before moving to Victoria in 1963.

LOCAL WORK

Since then he has worked on assignments for many companies on the Island, designing identity symbols for stationery, brochures, packaging, vehicles and buildings.

While much of his time is devoted to local design work, he is also consultant to a Montreal engineering firm which designs and builds radio, television stations and motion picture studios internationally.

Part of his job entails visits to the project site. Then he returns

X-Ray Fund Helped By Lions

GOLD RIVER—Gold River Lions Club has donated the proceeds of its turkey bingo to the Kinsmen X-ray fund. The donation of $308.75 brought the fund total to $4,112.

Pat Costello, fund chairman, said the total included recent donations of $1,000 by Canadian Forest Products and $50 from D. Leslie. Target for the fund is $5,000.00.

Appeal Nears Finish

COURTENAY — The 1968 Comox United Good Neighbor campaign is waiting final returns from one division of the canvass before officials close their books.

Donations are still coming in from people missed by canvassers during the October blitz. The total Tuesday was $28,642.73.

Campaign manager L. P. S. Bing reported that campaign expenses will be less than $1,800, including advertising, campaign and kit supplies, and the manager's $1,000 salary.

Expenses appear to be approximately five per cent of the objective of $36,000, he said.

The job of manager is a year-round one. He sets up the annual drive, conducts the details of the canvass and receives all receipts during the year, said Mr. Bing.

This year Mr. Bing received and recorded payroll deductions and post-dated cheques from the 1967 campaign up to the week when the 1968 campaign started.

One Man's Dream Real Nightmare

SAIGON (Reuters) — Soldiers dream of being the only man in an all-female unit, but a North Vietnamese officer found it a nightmare. Nguyen Van Chien, 27, who trained 67 guerrilla women, grew so disillusioned with verbal lashings from his leader—a one-armed pistol-packing young woman—that he gave himself up to the South Vietnamese. He now spends his time recording messages to encourage his former girl-friends to defect.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I can't resist the temptation to comment on the problem Sid was having with his bride-to-be Doris. He became upset when he learned Doris had had her nose remodelled and had kept it from him. Sid expressed his anxiety to Doris' father over lunch—saying he was concerned about what their unborn children might look like.

Your reply, "Better the kids should inherit Doris' old nose than Sid's brains," reminded me of this true story.

When I was young I remember my father asking a very intelligent but homely uncle why he was going to marry a certain young lady who was extremely beautiful, but unbalanced. In fact, everyone who knew the girl said she was crazy. My uncle replied, "I want children who will be beautiful like their mother and intelligent like me."

My uncle and his wife had

A Lovelier You

Trouble Eased On Top

By MARY SUE MILLER

What's your hair grooming problem? Solutions are to be found to the usual difficulties in these new handy-dandy gadgets.

In its own zippered tote bag, a miniswinger hair dryer — so small that a child can handle it. The advantages for traveling as well as home use are obvious.

Also in a carrying case, satin pillow slips that help to keep your hair in order while you sleep. Set 'n' stay is the idea. Because of special weaving and blending, the material works to keep your hairstyle in place. Slips are pastel, pretty and hand washable.

Rollers with a new concept: that of magnetic mini-teeth. There's no glide or slide while setting. Teeth grip your hair and, owing to double vents, speed drying time. Sizes meet the needs of current hairdo's. A very small "tumble" size takes care of very short, curly do's.

For do-it-yourself wiggers, home wig kits come on strong. These include a foam wig block, wiglet block, styling stand with a suction base, and wig T-pins. Use just might turn an amateur wigger into a professional.

five children. Every one of these kids is homely like their father and crazy like their mother.—PAUL L.

Dear Paul: No one can predict what the genes and chromosomes will produce. For people who wish to gamble, I recommend the horse races.

Dear Ann Landers: A couple of years ago you printed a letter from a teenager who asked you to help bridge the generation gap in her house. She said her parents kept harping on how things were when they were teenagers and this only made matters worse. After all, it's a different world today and everything has changed, including the teenagers.

Your answer was the best thing I had ever read on the subject. I cut it out and pinned it to the bulletin board in the kitchen. I helped a lot in our house.

The clipping is getting ragged and hard to read. Will you please reprint your answer? I would love to have a fresh copy to reread. Thank you.—GLAD THERE'S AN ANN LANDERS

Dear Glad: Happy to oblige. Here it is:

Attention Parents or Fellow Antiques. The one phrase that kids do not want to hear is, "When I was your age."

In the first place, they don't believe you ever were.

In the second place, they couldn't care less "how it was." They are concerned with how it is. Comparisons are not only boring, they are meaningless.

Your children are growing up in a different world than the one you and I knew. They have different problems, different pressures — and different parents. Teenagers today have it easier in some ways, but their lives are much more complicated and frustrating in other ways. One thing is certain — I'm glad I am not in high school today. I'm not at all sure I could make it.

Rich-Girl Look Most Chic, Most Favored

By EUGENIA SHEPPARD

NEW YORK — There's no one and only hairdo this fall. Just about anything goes as long as it isn't teased and tossed like a bale of hay.

If there is a uniform hairdo for daytime, it's the simple George Washington tie-back, with the ends either flying loose or clubbed at the back of the neck.

Some gentlemen in powdered wigs may have invented it, but Mrs. Gardner Cowles was one of the first women to wear it here in recent years. The time was when bouffant hair was still in full bloom, and I remember how new and exciting Jan's hair looked.

The most popular hairdo for evening is just as simple as the George Washington. Hair is brushed back from face, tied with a ribbon at the crown of the head and then allowed to fall long, natural and shiny. Because it has a pampered, protected car-and-chauffeur look, and because so many Park Avenue and Fifth Avenue girls like it, hair stylists and editors call it the rich-girl hairdo.

Charlotte Ford was wearing her hair that way at a PAL benefit theatre party and show of fashions made of the new Touch fabrics in the Rainbow Room the other night. Her blonde hair was tied with a pink satin ribbon to match her Bill Blass harem pajamas.

Charlotte and her sister, Anne Ford Uselli, are both synonymous with the rich-girl hairdo. Photographs of the Furds and such socialites as Louise Savitt, Lyn Revson, Topsy Talier, and former fashion editor Jane Tamerin Orlansky have helped boost its stock with career girls. At a recent concert in Philharmonic Hall, Time and Life staffer Diana Sweeney, among a dozen others, was wearing the rich-girl look.

Hair stylists have been trying to put over the short cut for years, but, just like the longer skirt, it hasn't caught on so far.

Lots of girls had their hair cropped after a McCall's cover showed Mia Farrow all eyes and no hair. "They're all letting it grow, though," says Kenneth. "Chin length is the most popular now."

American University Women

Few Veto King Fund

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some chapters of the American Association of University Women are opposing a drive by the organization on behalf of an educational fund named for the widow of slain Dr. Martin Luther King.

The opponents, mostly representing southern and southwestern chapters, voted against contributing to the fund.

Their chief complaint is that the AAUW governing board should not have set up the fund without clearing it with all the AAUW's 177 thousand members. About half a dozen chapters are involved.

Mary Boyette, spokesman for the national headquarters in Washington, said "opposition has been small in comparison to support."

The group has raised about $11,000. The goal is $150,000 by June, 1969.

"There is no doubt that the John Birchers are having a voice in this in Texas," she said, "and many Southerners feel strongly against it elsewhere." Texas has contributed $97 from the state organization.

The fund is billed as "a gift of conscience... a gift of faith based on a recognition of past injustice and inequality" to the American Negro.

MINDEN, Ont. (CP) — Faced with a violent man, armed with a rifle and holed up in a house surrounded by policemen, standard police procedure is not to push or threaten. Two provincial police officers followed procedure Wednesday and died.

Death came without warning to Det.-Sgt. Lorne Chapitis, 38, and Cpl. James Smith, 42, veterans of the force. They died with arms spread to show that they carried no weapons. The bullets that killed them travelled eight feet.

Charged with capital murder is William Norman Pratt, 35, a one-time resident of this little central Ontario community noted for its hunting and fishing.

Pratt appeared in nearby Lindsay Thursday and was remanded for preliminary hearing to Dec. 19. He is bearded with curly brown hair.

The charges of capital murder—two were laid—are the first since Parliament amended the Criminal Code in 1967 to abolish the death penalty for murder.

except in cases involving the slaying of prison guards and police officers.

Death struck here shortly after 9 p.m. at the end of a narrow, winding road beside a lake six miles east of Minden, 25 miles northwest of Peterborough.

MOTHER CALLED POLICE Seven policemen, called to a seven-room, frame cottage by a mother who appealed for help, were besieging the place. Inside the house was a man with a 44-40-calibre hunting rifle.

The man called: "Look, I want to talk to four of you guys."

Det.-Sgt. Chapitis, trained in the psychology of violent persons, stepped forward. With him was Cpl. Smith, an expert on tear gas who had been ready to lob gas shells through the cottage windows.

They called out that they were unarmed. They spread their arms to prove it.

They were within eight feet of the cottage when the man stepped outside and fired twice.

Death came instantly to Det.-Sgt. Chapitis and Cpl. Smith. "You don't live long when you're shot by something that big," an OPP staff officer said.

TORONTO (CP) — Two RCMP corporals testified at the trial of five men charged with conspiring to smuggle marijuana into Canada and with possession of marijuana for purposes of trafficking. The others are Sydney Tremayne, 34, and three students from Rockdale College in Toronto—James Shier, 20; Richard Everett, 22, and Kerry Bindon, 24. Johnston and Tremayne were newspaper men employed by the Globe and Mail when they were arrested. All five men have elected trial by judge and jury.

RCMP Cpl. John Ross said he made a similar seizure of marijuana Nov. 19, also addressed to D. M. Johnston.

'Bonnie, Clydes' Nabbed in Raid

LONDON (UPI) — Police surrounded a small East London hotel before dawn Thursday and arrested three members of the "Bonnie and Clyde" gang.

Christopher Bernard Hague, 19, and Francis Farren, 20, were charged with causing grievous bodily harm to a prison officer, police said.

Sandra Ann Shelton, the platinum-haired 18-year-old "Bonnie" of the five-member gang, was also taken into custody and charged with receiving stolen money.

Roger Denhardt and Terence Thorne, each 20, were still at large.

Thorne and Denhardt are the founders of the gang. They were the first to break out of a jail outside London in late October and police said they took $48,000 from a Birmingham bank at the point of a shotgun.

Michael Poyser was bewildered at the speed of the left in the pink-walled, red-carpeted bedroom after the raid.

"When I opened the door detectives asked to see the register," Poyser said.

"The next thing I heard was a girl screaming."

"She seemed so sweet and attractive," Poyser said about Sandra. Police described her as having a taste for "the fast life."

The trio arrived at the Aston Grove hotel on Monday riding motorcycles and wearing crash helmets and leather suits.

LOOKED ALIKE

"It was impossible to tell one from the other," Poyser said.

They registered under the name of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Bolton and D. Bloomfield.

"They spent most of their time in their rooms," Poyser said. "I used to serve them breakfast in bed just after 8 each morning. But they would go out for lunch," Poyser said.

A stock of newspapers and magazines — one titled Crime Does Not Pay and giving "the truth about Bonnie and Clyde" — a bag of apples and some peanuts were the only things

Test Blast Fallout Hit

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A University of Utah scientist says an underground nuclear blast in Nevada last weekend generated the highest levels of radioactive fallout in some western states since 1962.

Dr. Robert Pendleton, director of Utah University's radiological health program, accused the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission of using western U.S. residents as "guinea pigs."

He said he was confident the radioactivity from what the AEC called a cratering shot, to test effects of underground nuclear blasts in hard rock, would not create any immediate hazard to humans.

VAST QUANTITIES

But vast quantities of new radiation would be added to the accumulation from past tests in Utah, Colorado, Wyoming, Idaho and Nevada, he said.

The AEC has said the radiation released Sunday was "infinitesimal."

Pendleton referred to this as "standard public relations gobbledeek—the sort of thing they have been telling us since 1962, and it should be taken in that context."

Henry Vermillion, director of public affairs of the AEC's Nevada operations office, said the level of radioactivity emitted from the underground blast is far below guidelines established by the Federal Radiation Council.

Box Office Chill Freezes Spring Thaw

TORONTO (CP) — Spring
Thaw 1969 will not make a national tour next year, the show's producer has decided.

Robert Johnston says box office reversals and unexpected costs this year hampered the 21-year-old revue financially.

Instead of a national tour, it will open March 13 in Windsor, Ont., tour several Ontario cities and then run for six weeks starting April 21 at the Royal Alexandra Theatre here.

The revue features sketches and songs on current Canadian topics. This year it will star
Tom Kneebone with script edited by Don Harrow, both of Toronto.

OFFER REJECTED

Actor Barry Morse rejected an offer to direct the show because he is already committed to direct You Must Be the Virgin, an ironic suspense play next March in London's West End.

"I really wanted to direct Spring Thaw," he said in an interview Wednesday.

"I have several ideas about it.
One is that it has become far too parochial...."

"Another idea is to change its name altogether and come up with a brand new concept."

Morse, born in London, came to Canada in 1951 and has appeared in more than 2,500 roles on stage, film and television in Britain and North America.

Scruffy Hippie Officer Bickered on Drug Sale

Two Victoria youths were committed for trial Thursday on a joint charge of trafficking in narcotics, following evidence given by an RCMP undercover agent who associated with the city's hippie population for months.

Funeral Here For Head Of Hospital

SEATTLE (AP) — Justin Greene, executive director of Northwest Hospital, died at his home in Suburban Bothell Wednesday night. He was 44.

Greene, a native of Victoria, was a graduate of the University of British Columbia and a seven-year veteran of the Royal Canadian Navy. He had been administrator of Northwest Hospital here since it opened in 1959.

He also represented Washington hospitals on Governor Dan Evans' council on government reorganization.

Survivors include his wife, Joy, five children; his mother, Mrs. W. A. Greene of New Westminster, and a sister, Mrs. Walter Shymkowski of Seattle.

Cause of death was not announced. Funeral services are scheduled Saturday at Sands Funeral Home, Victoria, with burial at Royal Oak.

Cosmopolitan

Club's Work Goes On

Operation and maintenance of the Cosmo Bus for the Multiple Sclerosis Society, sponsorship of baseball and soccer teams and of the Pee Wee Pup Reps will continue in 1969, the newly-elected Cosmopolitan Club president Charlie Gibb announced this week.

Mr. Gibb was elected at the recent installation dinner of the club.

Other officers are Kenneth Johnston, governor; Sydney Clark, vice-president; Peter Holmes, second vice-president; Roy Crouch, secretary; Arthur Messerschmidt, treasurer; Clifford MacKay, sergeant-at-arms.

Elected for 1969 for the Cosmo Pals, the women's branch of the club: Ethel King, president; Margaret Johnston, vice-president; Sophia Gibb, secretary; Eleanor Bray, treasurer; Joan Crouch, sergeant-at-arms; Audrey Ross, Helen Crawford, phoning committee; Elsie Holmes, publicity; Iris MacKay, historian.

David Weir, 18, of 3005 Devon, and Raymond Prior, also 18, of 431 Hilda, are also charged separately with selling LSD.

Constable Michael Onischuk said his cover as a scruffy, dressed hippie was broken by Nov. 13, the same day as the date on the trafficking charges, but before that date he had negotiated many purchases of drugs.

SOME BICKERING

He told the court of meeting Prior and Weir on Nov. 13.

He asked Prior how much he wanted for "three lids of weed" and after a certain amount of bickering they settled on $50.

The police officer said the marijuana was in a plastic bag with each "lid" (one ounce) wrapped separately.

GILL INVOLVED

Final negotiation took place on Blanshard Street after a couple of meetings. A girl handed the package to Weir, who handed it to Prior who handed it to him, Constable Onischuk said.

He added that he was searched before and after the transaction by Constable G. P. O'Neill, officer in charge of the RCMP drug detail.

Constable O'Neill took the "weed" and put it in safekeeping.

The preliminary hearing into the joint charge was told by Constable Onischuk that marijuana sold for about $15 an ounce when it was in good supply, and $20 when not.

LSD HEARING LATER

LSD sold for $7 to $8 a tablet, he said.

A preliminary hearing into two charges of selling LSD against Weir have been put off until Jan. 27. Evidence was taken Thursday in a charge against Prior of selling the drug.

The same undercover agent told the court he met Prior in Centennial Square on Oct. 7. After a preliminary meeting he encountered him again on the same day and gave him $75 for "ten tabs of pink schmeer."

PINK SCHMEER

"Pink schmeer" was a slang word for the drug, which was also known as pinnacle acid, he said.

The Crown will call another witness in the hearing for Prior, after which Magistrate William Ostler will give his decision on commitment, probably today.

Magistrate Ostler dismissed another case of trafficking in a substance purported to be a narcotic.

Reviewing evidence given earlier, Magistrate Ostler said that William Robert Lowe, 615 Bay, gave Constable Onischuk a substance which was supposed to be "hash," in return for $12.

It was a cube of black material and it did not contain a drug, the magistrate said. He was satisfied that a sale was made, but there was no evidence to support the contention that Lowe was offering it as a drug.

John P. Chutter, 160 Memorial Crescent, said he decided to change his plea on a dangerous driving charge to one of guilty after seeing a road safety film in Saanich.

Going to see the film was commendable, the magistrate said, but Chutter's driving "was deeply criminal" and he was lucky he hadn't killed himself or someone else. He imposed a fine of $400.

The court was told Chutter crossed the Johnson Street bridge at more than 45 miles an hour and then steadily accelerated until he reached a speed of 85.

Margaret Dryden, 107 Cook, was fined $150 for shoplifting groceries from a store in the Town and Country shopping centre.

The court was told that the accused had been deeply disturbed and her counsel said the humiliation suffered throughout the incident should be a shock which would straighten her out.

Jack Ritchie Painters and Decorators, and Saanich Arm Logging Ltd., each faced two charges of not submitting proper income tax forms. Each firm was fined $25 and costs on the second.

Commission Layoffs

Jobless Jobs Going

OTTAWA (CP) — The Unemployment Insurance Commission will lay off about 75 employees during the next year, but they will get six months notice, Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey told the Commons Thursday.

Russell MacEwan (PC—Central Nova) said he understands a number of permanent commission employees were being laid off in the Vancouver area.

"Is it government policy to lay off permanent public servants and replace them with temporary help," Mr. MacEwan asked.

Mr. Mackasey replied that permanent public servants being laid off "will get six months notice as long as I'm minister of labor."

He said the commission has a certain degree of autonomy and proposed reductions in staff had been negotiated with the unions involved. As a result, the number of layoffs had been reduced to fewer than 75 from an original estimate of 600.

Cabinet Sacred Second Generation

EDMONTON (CP) — Harry Strom became Alberta's ninth premier Thursday and named a cabinet that marked the passing of the Social Credit government's first generation of power.

Described as a "caretaker" cabinet by the new premier, it contains the same personnel as the outgoing administration of Premier E. C. Manning with the exception of Manning himself and his lands and forests minister, A. J. Hooke.

Manning, 60, and Hooke, 63, were the only men in the cabinet who were elected in the 1935 sweep that brought Social Credit to power under the late William Aberhart.

Manning becomes a back-bencher for the first time in his 33-year political career and will be joined by Hooke, who was not offered a post, in the new administration.

With their departure, cabinet seniority belongs to Highways Minister Gordon Taylor, 58, who has sat in the legislature since 1940 and joined the administration 10 years later.

Taylor, who finished second when the Alberta Social Credit League elected Strom as its leader Friday, was designated to perform the functions of premier in the premier's absence but Strom did not formally name him deputy premier.

However, he broke with precedent by appointing Public Works Minister Fred Colborne as House leader. Manning himself held the House leadership during his 25 years as premier.

Strom turned the education department over to Youth Minister Robert Clark, 33, youngest member of the cabinet and Strom's campaign manager during the leadership campaign. Clark also remained youth minister.

Labor Minister Ray Reiersen, 49, who previously held the education portfolio, was given the telephone department, formerly the responsibility of Provincial Treasurer A. O. Aalborg, 54, has announced that he plans to retire before the next provincial election.

Minister of municipal affairs under Manning, the premier added the portfolio to the duties of Attorney-General Edgar Gerhart and assigned Hooke's duties in lands and forests to Agriculture Minister Henry Ruste in addition to his present responsibilities. Both Gerhart and Ruste were reassuming portfolios they held before a cabinet shuffle last July.

In a statement released after the new cabinet was sworn in and confirmed by Strom at a later news conference, Reiersen said he declined the new premier's invitation to continue as minister of education. Reiersen, who withdrew from Friday's leadership contest after the first ballot and threw his support to Taylor, promised to "apply myself with total vigor and full co-operation to the new government."

His statement said he felt it advisable to relinquish the additional responsibility for education because the department accounts for one-third of budgetary expenditure.

It's Strom like Bomb

EDMONTON (CP) — Harry Strom's executive secretary quietly passed the word Thursday that Alberta's new premier pronounces his name to rhyme with bomb.

created some confusion at his swearing-in ceremony earlier in the day.

"Repeat after me," he had been told by Lieutenant-Governor J. W. Grant MacEwan "I, Harry Strom

... the pronunciation rhymed with comb.

Dutifully, the premier pronounced it the same way.

Later, the premier's executive secretary, Russell Sheppard, set the record straight.

Cardinal

Acting Quebec Premier Seated Amid Speculation

Cardinal Sworn In as Bertrand's Future Questioned

QUEBEC (CP) — Acting-Premier Jean-Guy Cardinal was courteously welcomed into the legislative assembly Thursday with the parliamentary atmosphere charged with speculation about Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand's political future.

Bertrand, 52, suffering from "heart troubles," underwent examinations at the Quebec Cardiology Institute where he was admitted Monday night and ordered by doctors to take a complete rest for at least four weeks.

OPINIONS VARY

Opinion within the Union Nationale party on whether or not Bertrand would resign tended to vary with the political interests of the party and government sources questioned.

To prominent speculation that Bertrand will resign and open the way to party leadership to Education Minister Cardinal, a loyal Bertrand aide answered bluntly:

"He is not dead. All he needs is a rest."

But sources whose political hopes ride on Cardinal's leadership possibilities, said: "We are wondering whether he will be well enough to carry on. We are asking several of these questions ourselves."

BAGOT RIDING

Cardinal, 43-year-old former dean of law at the University of Montreal, was sworn in as MLA for Bagot riding where he inherited the late premier Daniel Johnson's assembly seat in a Dec. 4 byelection.

The vice-chairman of the cabinet, presented to the house by government house leader Maurice Bellemare, was seated in the second row of government benches four seats to the right and one seat behind the desk shared by Bertrand and Bellemare.

After he was sworn in, Cardinal attended a reception in the legislature's restaurant for the election organizers who helped him win the seat held by Daniel Johnson for 22 years.

LOYAL FRIENDS

Several of the late premier's loyal political friends revolved around Cardinal, including Jean Loiseleur, the premier's executive assistant, and Roger Cyr, director of the government's office of information and publicity.

Speculation that Bertrand would resign was hinged primarily on the argument that the party does not want as a leader a man afflicted with heart troubles.

But while speculators promoted Cardinal to the premiership, one party official said that Bertrand remains "the boss" and has not given up his grip on government power despite his heart ailment.

The official cited as an indication of Bertrand's power, the procedure being followed on the controversial language rights bill introduced Monday by Bertrand who said he hoped the bill would be passed this session.

The party source said the Union Nationale caucus decided Wednesday to ask Bertrand whether he would agree to sending the bill to guarantee language rights of Quebec's English-speaking minority to committee before second reading.

The informant said the fact that the caucus is seeking Bertrand's opinion, demonstrates loyalty to Bertrand, unanimously chosen interim party leader following Johnson's death Sept. 26.

The reason cited for sending the bill to committee was to avoid a bitter split between a nationalist faction in the caucus which opposes the bill and those who are anxious to see it through.

The Union Nationale's nationalist faction, including Cultural Affairs Minister Jean-Noel Tremblay, have been the targets of a nationalist and separatist lobby that wants to see the bill shelved until the government's royal commission on the French language makes its recommendation within a year.

Protest Plans Monday

QUEBEC (CP) — Nationalist and separatist groups Thursday announced that demonstrations at the legislature against the government's language rights bill have been called off until Monday.

The announcement was made at a news conference after a demonstration in front of the legislative buildings attracted only about 125 persons who withdrew after a few hours.

PROTESTERS SPEAK

Raymond Lemieux, president of the Mouvement pour l'integration sociale and spokesman for the demonstrators, said:

"We have reason to believe we can be confident in the government as it now is composed."

He would not elaborate but this was an apparent reference to Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand's illness and Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal's appointment as acting-premier.

Lemieux refused to say why a Monday deadline had been set.

ANSWER MONDAY

Asked what would be done Monday, he said: "We'll see Monday."

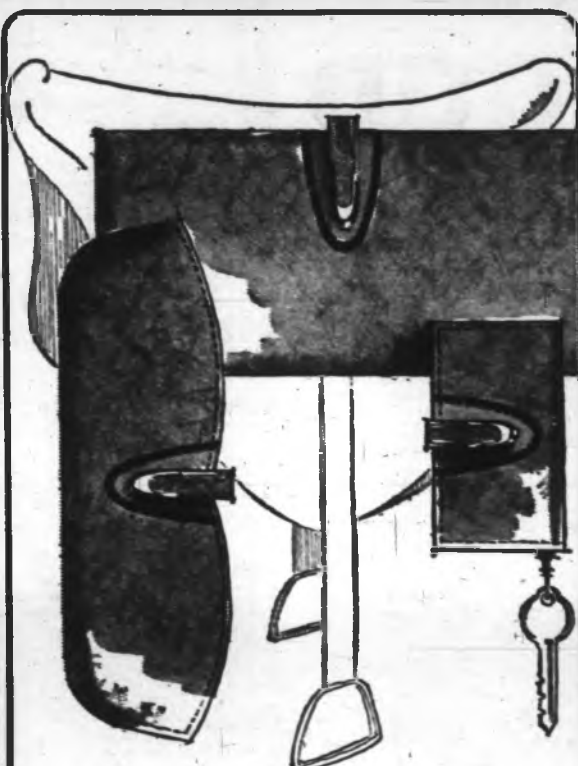

He denied that the demonstration Thursday was a failure.

Lemieux would not say whether he had received information about government plans for the bill.

Acting-Premier Cardinal told a news conference Wednesday night that the bill to protect public school rights of Quebec's English-speaking minority would be studied before the end of the legislative assembly session but he could not say whether it would be adopted.

Dallas Wants $27.72 Back

Officer's Widow Billed

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — City patrolman Floyd A. Knight, 23, picked up his pay cheque before going on duty Sunday. It was still in his breast pocket that night when a bandit shot and killed him.

The city auditor's office Thursday asked the widow of the slain officer to return $27.72. The explanation was that Knight worked two days, four hours and 45 minutes of working the period covered by his cheque.

"Regardless of the sadness of the thing, we can't show on our records pay for a man after he is dead," said city auditor Lynn Crossley.

The request for the return of the $27.72 was "just a routine matter," he said.

Friends of Knight collected the amount among themselves and took it to the auditor's office.

By Thursday the story had percolated to the top of the municipal heap and the city manager Scott McDonald said the widow would not have to pay back the money. The city said the request for its return was "a clerical slip-up."

The money due the city was the net difference between the two days of unserved duty and overtime due Knight, with retirement fund and income tax withholdings adjustments, the auditor said.

He said Dallas policemen and firemen are paid two or three days in advance, with overtime pay estimated. Adjustments for the previous pay period are made on each cheque.

Sitting Counting Opposition?

Blushing Strangers Spied

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Red-haired, ebullient, bull-necked Eddie Woolliams, Conservative MP for Calgary North, can be counted on to throw the Commons into an uproar at the drop of a word.

He did it again Thursday by using a seldom-employed House rule to ask that two ministerial assistants be identified them as "strong-arm men"—be tossed out of a Commons gallery.

He said the two were keeping attendance figures on opposition MPs contrary to Commons regulations.

The two denied this to reporters. They were Tim D'Aquino, an assistant to Privy Council President Donald Macdonald, government House leader, and Robert McDowell, an assistant to Transport Minister Paul Hellyer.

Earlier, James Richardson, minister without portfolio, had told a questioner that Hellyer was in Toronto on government business.

SOME QUALMS
The incident began by Woolliams ended on a note which will likely give some MPs some qualms.
At the suggestion of Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming), Speaker Lucien Lamoureux said he would refer to the procedure committee the possibility of adopting some system for officially recording Commons attendance.

The only official attendance figure now kept occurs when a vote is taken on a formal division.

POINTED TO GALLERY
Woolliams pointed to the diplomatic gallery and said two men from Macdonald's office were marking the attendance of opposition MPs.

Stanley Knowles, NDP House leader, said Mr. Speaker had no option under House order No. 13 but to order the two to withdraw from the gallery.

Lamoureux said officials assigned to them and some are permitted to occupy part of the diplomatic gallery and to take notes.

SHOULD EXAMINE NOTES
Woolliams said the Commons protective staff should examine the notes of the two "strong-arm men."

"I know exactly what they're up to," he added.
"This is another part of the dictatorship by this government."

Macdonald said he is sorry that opposition MPs are sensitive about attendance.

CUSTOM OF OFFICIALS
He said no particular rule was being broken. It was the custom of officials to take notes in the Commons galleries and it was irrelevant what the subject was.

Will Not Take 'Poison Pill'

OTTAWA (CP) — Commons committees are kangaroo courts controlled by the prime minister, Eddie Woolliams (PC—Calgary North) told the Commons Thursday.

Government members on committees elect the chairman selected by the prime minister or the government House leader, Woolliams charged.

He said any opposition member on a committee who asks embarrassing questions can be ruled out of order and, since the government members are in the majority, has no right of appeal.

'KANGAROO COURTS'
The outspoken Alberta lawyer said the Conservatives could never agree to turning over the study of spending "$11,000,000,000 of the public's money" to committees which he said are just "kangaroo courts."

He was protesting a proposed change in the rules of procedure that would give study of all the government's spending estimates to standing Commons committees.

The Conservatives want to have at least one-third of the estimates studied by committee of the whole House.

TWO COMPROMISES
Woolliams said the proposed rule changes could be implemented immediately if the government would compromise on two points—the rule allowing the government House leader to allocate time for debate in the event of disagreement among the parties and the rule placing study of all government spending in the hands of standing committees.

Steve Otto (L—York East) also protested the suggested rule that would give the party whip the power to remove any MP from a committee.

Yves Forest (L—Mississauga) said experience has shown that the government's existing closure right to cut off a particular debate and force a vote is not a practical solution to the question of time allocation.

PIERCE NDP FIGHT
Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood), whose party has fiercely fought the time-allocation rule, said he deeply regretted the inclusion of this "poisonous pill" in the rules package. He could not swallow it.

He said the rule would make the government House leader "the absolute master of the House."

Looking across at Ron Bradford, the consumer affairs minister, Brewin said the rules debate affects the whole shape of democracy, yet there is only one government cabinet minister in the House and he "sits and reads."

For the government, Grant Deachman (L—Vancouver Quadra) said the Canadian Parliament has "the most antiquated set of rules" among modern parliaments. Other Commonwealth countries are away ahead.

Whip Flicks Hellyer For Hookey

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Whip Tom Bell flicked out at Transport Minister Paul Hellyer in the Commons Thursday, suggesting that his pay be docked for missing Commons sessions or that he be "kept in after school."

Alternatively, Hellyer might be required to make up the time he's missed," Bell said.

He made the suggestion after Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) complained that Thursday was "one of the many days" Hellyer was not in the House.

Minister Unable To Act

OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration Minister Allan MacEachen said Thursday he has "absolutely no discretion" to intervene in the case of nine Polish seamen ordered deported by an immigration appeal board in Halifax.

He told the Commons the board apparently was satisfied that the seamen would be in no danger of prosecution when they are sent back to their homeland.

At the same time, MacEachen assured Michael Forrestall (Dartmouth-Halifax East) that the long-standing government policy of granting asylum to refugees from Communist countries who might be in danger if deported is still in effect.

Forrestall had asked the minister to instruct his legal counsel to recommend or agree to a re-hearing of the case.

MacEachen said the board could decide to hear an appeal against the deportation order if additional facts were produced. But under the law he himself had no right to intervene.

Society Wins Incorporation

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate banking committee approved a bill to grant federal incorporation to the Canadian Order of Foresters, which now operates as a fraternal society providing life and sickness insurance under Ontario incorporation. The order, incorporated in 1873, will be known as the Canadian Foresters Life Insurance Society.

Too Few Perforations

New Stamps Bit Sticky

OTTAWA (CP) — A spokesman for the post office admitted Thursday that mailing Christmas cards this year could be a stickier business than usual.

It seems there aren't enough holes dividing the definitive issue of the new six-cent stamps, making it more difficult to separate them.

The spokesman said the stamps are produced by the British-American Bank Note Co., using a new press that gives 10-gauge perforation instead of 12-gauge.

The dye will be re-adjusted.

The stamp in question is orange with a picture of the Queen and CN's new turbo-train.

The British Columbia pollution control board Thursday recommended an immediate end to the discharge of nutrient-bearing wastes into Okanagan and Skaha Lakes.

Water Resources Minister Ray Williston said the board has recommended "continuation of its inquiry into water pollution clude sewage and other organic effluent.

Mr. Williston said the recommendation follows "failure to date by Okanagan municipalities to submit briefs for the inquiry which began last summer."

"The board is handicapped because the municipalities have given no indication as to how far they are prepared to go in matters of control in the immediate future."

The board's report said it is essential that the inquiry "remain open until such material is obtained."

B.C. Byelection Set

VANCOUVER (CP) — A provincial byelection will be held Monday, Jan. 13, to fill the Burnaby-Willington seat in the Legislature, Premier Bennett announced here Thursday.

The vacancy was caused by the death Oct. 20 of Fred Vulliamy of the New Democratic Party.

Present standing in the 55-seat legislature is Social Credit 32, NDP 16, Liberals six, with one vacancy.

K. L. Morton, chief electoral officer for B.C., said the voters' list for the byelection will close Dec. 20. Nominations will close Saturday, Jan. 4. Advance polls will be open Jan. 9-11.

Mr. Morton said that because of the heavy crush of Christmas mail, special collection centres will be set up where residents of the riding, whose names are not on the list, may turn in registration cards.

Minister Proposes Ban of Far Right

BONN (Reuters) — Interior Minister Ernst Benda will recommend a ban on the extreme right-wing National Democratic party at a cabinet meeting next week, West German government sources said Thursday night.

Benda started a special investigation into the party's activities this fall to decide whether there are sufficient grounds to have it declared unconstitutional.

Near Caracas

Jet Falls With 50 Into Sea

CARACAS (UPI) — A Pan American Airways jet with 50 persons aboard crashed Thursday night in the Caribbean a few miles off the coast of Venezuela.

There was no immediate word of the fate of the 42 passengers and eight crewmen. Venezuelan naval vessels were sent to the scene.

The flight, a Boeing 707 jet, from New York city, was scheduled to arrive at Caracas' Maiquetia International Airport at 6:35 p.m. PST.

Pan Am officials at Kennedy Airport in New York confirmed at 10:05 p.m. PST that the plane has crashed and wreckage has been sighted about at sea 10 miles offshore from Venezuela.

FINAL APPROACH

They said the plane was on its final approach to the Caracas messages that it was in trouble. Messages that it was in trouble.

The plane was on a non-stop flight from New York to Caracas and was about half full.

LOST CONTACT

Control tower personnel at the Caracas airport said they lost radio contact with the aircraft when it was at an altitude of 1,000 feet and 16 miles from the airport.

Several witnesses told naval authorities they saw the plane crash into the sea about 10 miles off the coast of La Guayra.

The navy sent a tug boat, three launches and several other vessels to the area.

East Summit Cancelled

LONDON (UPI)—The Warsaw Pact summit at Budapest, scheduled for early next week, has been cancelled because of unbridled differences among member nations, east European diplomatic sources said Thursday.

Airline Pact Offered

MONTREAL (CP) — The 2,200 Air Canada employees who had begun work-to-rule procedures Monday to back up contract demands have been offered an eight-per-cent increase in wages the airline estimates would cost $1,250,000 in a one-year agreement to Aug. 1, 1969.

John Hayes, vice-president of the Canadian Air Line Employees Association, told a news conference Thursday he would recommend unanimous acceptance of the latest offer.

Other fringe benefits include one more statutory holiday, four weeks vacation after 15 years service instead of after 20, improvements in shift premiums and seniority. Air Canada said the contract is retroactive to last Aug. 1.

Under the last contract which expired July 31, passenger agents earned from $325 to $350.

Constitutional Talk Off Until February

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal-provincial constitutional conference scheduled for next week has been cancelled and Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons Thursday there is general agreement that it should convene early in February.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson said the federal-provincial conference of finance ministers scheduled for Dec. 19 will likely go ahead on that date.

The constitutional conference had been scheduled to open Monday until the sudden illness of Quebec Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand.

Trudeau said in reply to Opposition leader Robert Stanfield that all provinces except one accepted the idea of conference postponement requested by Quebec.

He did not name the province but it is known to be British Columbia.

Trudeau said one province cannot see its way clear to a February meeting but that he hopes some suitable arrangement can be worked out. Again, he did not name the province.

The prime minister said in reply to Lincoln Alexander (PC-Hamilton West) that some provinces have asked that the federal government's official languages bill not be passed by Parliament before the constitutional conference.

As a result, debate on the bill would be postponed at least a month.

Trudeau said it may be possible to put the bill through every stage except third and final reading before the constitutional conference.

David Macdonald (PC-Egmont) asked that the federal government's position papers on the constitution be made public in sufficient time before the conference so that there could be public discussion of the issue.

Trudeau said this will be considered after a new date for the conference is set.

Bennett Brief Won't Wait For Parley

Premier Bennett, saying the issues are too urgent to be shelved, plans to release copies of the B.C. brief on the constitution at a press conference today.

"There are many things before Parliament now, and more coming, that bear on the constitutional situation that we feel there should be no delay," the premier said Thursday.

"If the federal government really wants a conference we feel it should be held now and we're going to release our position, or brief, anyway because we think these things before Parliament, and others, are so important."

"We want British Columbians to know what their government's position is and we want the country to know it too before Parliament deals with these things."

The press conference was scheduled before Quebec's Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand, in hospital for treatment of "cardiac troubles," requested the constitutional conference to be held in Ottawa next week be postponed.

Still Too Many Boats Involved

Fisheries Face New Cuts

OTTAWA (CP) — Further steps will have to be taken eventually to reduce the "excessive" number of boats harvesting the Pacific Salmon fisheries, Dr. A. W. H. Needler, federal deputy fisheries minister, said Thursday.

The fisheries department had just taken steps to prevent new boats joining in the Pacific salmon catch. But eventually this moratorium would have to be extended, possibly by the government buying up currently-licensed boats.

Needler, appearing before the Senate science policy committee, said studies show that Commonwealth Under U.S.

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's interests would be served in a "Commonwealth" of developed nations headed by the United States, says Alastair Buchan, director of the Institute for Strategic Studies, London.

To accomplish this, the position of the United States would have to be redefined "as a central element in a community — better still a commonwealth — of developed powers rather than as the prime guardian of the whole international order," he said.

Buchan, former foreign editor of the London Observer who is a visiting lecturer at Carleton University's School of International Affairs, explained his concept in an address Thursday night and in an interview.

An American-led commonwealth would only be possible, he said, if the U.S. policy-making machinery were re-adjusted to allow Canadians

'Mysterious Epidemic' Strikes 104 Teachers

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—A "mysterious epidemic" struck down 104 of New Westminster's 120 elementary school teachers Thursday.

The teachers have been working to rule since Nov. 20.

As a result of the teachers' absence 450 children were sent home from 12 classes in Grades 5, 6 and 7.

SUBSTITUTES

The remainder of the 3,700 students in the city's eight elementary schools stayed at school, some under the supervision of 40 substitute teachers.

A school board spokesman described it as a "mysterious epidemic."

The teachers have been working to rule to gain direct talks between the New Westminster Elementary School Teachers Association and the school board instead of having to deal through the board's negotiator, George P. Cassidy.

He said they did not want to discuss salaries, which have gone to arbitration, but to meet the board on equal ground "not on a lord-serf relationship."

'FATIGUE'

Mr. Waller, one of the teachers absent from school Thursday, said he was suffering from fatigue.

He said he understood his colleagues had a variety of ailments—"colds, headaches, flu and mental fatigue."

The immediate implications of such a community, he said, would be the re-directing of aid from member countries through multilateral rather than unilateral channels "and a new impetus towards a further liberalization of trade among developed nations."

The middle powers, such as Canada, would be receptive to the idea for at least two reasons: They now are largely dependent on the military strength of the U.S. for their security and would welcome an opportunity to have a greater voice in policy making; the economic strength of the U.S. would give the grouping of a powerful bargaining basis.

The main obstacle to the formation of the commonwealth, he said, is the domestic turmoil in the U.S. and the distrust that this creates among its allies.

Officers Cleared In Sinking

WELLINGTON (Reuters) — Charges against the master, chief officer and chief engineer of a vessel which sank here with the loss of 51 lives have been formally dismissed, the New Zealand Parliament was told today.

The charges were that each caused the deaths and the loss of the 8,948-ton inter-island ferry Wahine which foundered in Wellington harbor during a storm April 10.

Best Use of Money

Cards Yield To Real Aid

For someone who lives alone in a room that is tucked away in a big downtown building, Christmas cards can become extremely important. At this time of year they provide a strong link with the past, with the world that lies outside that lonely room.

But for someone like Mrs. Anita Hayward, a cheerful, 80-year-old widow who lives alone on Fort Street, there is something that becomes more important than this.

It can perhaps be expressed best by her own thoughts as she recorded them on a scratch pad the other day.

"Dear friends on my Christmas card list," she wrote, "I have been reading the Colonist's sad stories of the poor souls who have so little money at Christmas and all through the year."

Her notes go on to detail how she decided at the last moment to refrain from spending money on Christmas cards so she could donate a similar amount to the Colonist 500 Fund.

The fund contributes to the Christmas each year of 500 families selected by the Christmas Bureau, an agency of the Community Chest.

Mrs. Hayward figured that 50 cards at 25 cents each and 50 five-cent stamps would cost her $15. But because she might think of other friends later, she increased the amount to $17 and gave it to the fund.

She was certain her friends would understand, that they would prefer her to use the money this way.

A few others have already done the same as Mrs. Hayward.

Of course, there are other ways of helping the fund, and Colonist readers are quick to find them.

For example, on Saturday and Sunday, students from Malvern and Westerham School will sing carols to collect money for the fund. And Greater Victoria Water District tunnel employees reached into their own pockets for a total of $230.

Stewart Bay

Boat Trip
To School Protested

By MARY TAYLOR

STEWART BAY — Toquart Indian parents are concerned about their children having to go to school by boat from Stewart Bay.

"If necessary, we would keep our children out of school if it would help to get action so they could get to school by bus instead of by boat," said Leonard Mack, hereditary chief of the Toquarts this week.

Mr. Mack, a member of the band council, said there were only three families living at Stewart Bay, 20 minutes by boat from Ucluelet, but they had 27 children.

Seventeen of the children, ranging from kindergarten to high school age, are taken daily by boat to a school in Ucluelet. One of the chief concerns of the parents is that the children have to be taken out 75 yards by canoe from "the rickety wharf to the float where the school boat ties up."

Someone must make two trips by canoe each morning and evening to take the children out and bring them back. If the men are at work, one of the mothers must handle the canoe, said Mr. Mack.

"In good weather this is all right, but there are times in the winter when a strong man cannot handle a canoe in those waters."

A contract was let almost three years ago to provide a dock that would be long enough to enable the children to walk out to the school boat but the dock was never built, he said.

'Parents Responsible'

"The parents are responsible for getting the youngsters out to the school boat and if they are not waiting there at 8:25 a.m. each morning, we have been told they will not be picked up."

"Sometimes I have to put my foot down, when the weather is bad, about the kids going out in the canoe," Mr. Mack said. "The average school time lost by the youngsters comes to about five weeks a year. It seems they are always missing some important test or other."

Mr. Mack complained that the school boat was crowded with 17 children and parents understood from the children that there were not enough life-jackets to serve everyone.

Overgrown Trail

He said he was not an authority on roadbuilding, but one over about three-quarters of a mile, across rugged terrain, might perhaps be built for something like $10,000.

Mr. Mack said a trail existed once but it was too overgrown for his small group, with hand-axes, to make any impression on it.

A road would also provide a way to bring in lumber for homes badly needed at Stewart Bay.

Two houses destroyed by fire a few years ago had never been replaced, he said. Chief Cecil Mack, his uncle, lives in a rented home in Port Alberni.

Another family which lost its home in a fire moved to Neah Bay and never returned. Remaining houses were taken over from the old Japanese fishing village which used to exist there when Stewart Bay was known as Hodaka Bay before the last war.

"They have been condemned for the past 10 years. But Indian Affairs officials tell us it is too costly and too dangerous to ship lumber in by water to this reserve. But it could be another 10 years before we get a road, it seems," said Mr. Mack.

"If it's too dangerous to ship in the lumber, how come it's not too dangerous for our kids to ride the same water to school?"

For Fun

While southern Vancouver Island residents huddle in raincoats against damp weather, northern spots are being transformed into picture-book scenery after falls of snow. While motorists may not welcome snow, it provides fun-time for children and ideal photographic material. Betty Macmillan's picture of God River homes huddled beneath pine trees show more attractive aspect of winter season. And for skiers, it provides one of year's most important occasions for recreation.

Central Health Unit

Psychiatrist Raps
Shortage of Staff

NANAIMO—Concern about staff shortages in the Central Vancouver Island Health Unit were expressed at Wednesday's quarterly meeting by Dr. S. E. Jensen, unit psychiatrist.

He referred to a lack of a psychologist and social worker which in turn made it necessary to tell family physicians that his department could not accept any more appointments. He interrupted his report to say "after five years of this, I have been looking at professional opportunities elsewhere in Canada." However he made it clear that was not an ultimatum. It was an expression of dissatisfaction, he said.

Dr. Jensen later explained that the situation was professionally untenable because patients could not get enough treatment.

WEEK'S DELAY

He gave an example in which a one week delay, "the earliest time available," was too late and a man had to be sent to Riverview Hospital.

He said that his contacts with psychologists in other health units indicated provincial dissatisfaction because of understaffing.

Later in the meeting the board noted that it had not received replies from Health Minister Ralph Lofmark about requests for staff members.

STRONG LETTER

The board will send "a strong letter" asking about their first request made about two months ago.

Acting Chairman George McKnight of Port Alberni said: "This has gone on long enough."

Mrs. Edith Gook, of Parksville-Qualicum, who announced that she would not be with the board next year after 17 years service, said: "I don't see the good of spreading our people so thinly that they aren't quite effective. Our present staff can't get their work done from top to bottom."

MOTION DEFEATED

Her motion to request an assistant health director was defeated because the board felt that if it could not get two men, there was little likelihood of obtaining a third.

Dr. Jensen's report later indicated that he expected authorities were preparing for mass arrests in the Nanaimo and neighboring communities on drug and marijuana charges.

Dr. H. L. Symon presented his last report to the board as unit director. He is going for an upgrading course and will be replaced by Peter Reynolds on Jan. 1st.

Dr. Symon noted increases in health unit coverage throughout the area.

North Cowichan, Region

Negotiations Still Possible
On Incinerator Scheme

DUNCAN—The door was still open for negotiations between North Cowichan and Cowichan Valley Regional District Board regarding an incinerator, the board was told Wednesday night.

Ald. John Cannon of North Cowichan said that the North Cowichan engineer was instructed by council to "have a look at a disposal unit in eastern Canada and he reported back it would be quite feasible to install this unit."

Ald. Cannon said council had merely agreed in principle to install an incinerator. A decision on the type had not been made yet.

He said that garbage disposal had been a problem in the municipality for many years. "The North Cowichan garbage committee is fully prepared to meet with its counterpart of the regional board."

Board chairman George Whittaker of North Cowichan said: "I think the plan they have would not give much protection against air pollution. Maybe it would be good for North Cowichan to have a look at the Goodrid incinerator."

Regional board members recently attended a demonstration arranged by representatives of Goodrid, an Australian firm.

Ald. Herb Halliday, Lake Cowichan, told the board that the level of the Cowichan River was measured twice a day.

His remarks followed an earlier suggestion by Ald. Cannon for a warning system in case of flood danger.

Ald. Cannon thought a system could be worked out with Peter Hayward, board secretary-treasurer, for the benefit of communities in the lower reaches of the Cowichan River.

Director David Laverock told the board that it hoped a new ambulance building would be completed by February after the board decided to purchase land at Canada Avenue from Duncan for $4,000.

The board may re-assess a fire protection proposal for the Saltair area after director J. F. Dobbell from Saltair stated that recent plebiscite was defeated by people who did not turn out to vote.

A suggestion to have one part of Saltair protected by Lady Smith and the other by Chemainus was studied.

Canning Idea

Plant Planned For Dogfish

By ARNOLD OLSON

NANAIMO — A Nanaimo man claims that he has developed a process to can dogfish.

"I've found a way to feed the hungry countries," Armand St. Jean said on Thursday.

He said that until he developed his method of canning dogfish, there was no way to do it because of the high ammonia content.

FIRST TIME

"The first time I showed one of my cans to the fisheries people, they looked and looked at the can. They opened it and took out the fish and poked and looked at the can some more."

"I asked them what they were looking for and they said, 'You can't can dogfish because it eats holes right through the can.'"

"After they ate some, it tastes just like Alaska black cod, they were convinced. Now whenever I go to Vancouver to see the fisheries people, they ask me, 'When are you going to come out with your dogfish and put them on the market?'"

PLANS SHOWN

Mr. St. Jean spoke to chamber of commerce and harbor commission representatives on Wednesday and told members of his plans.

He said he wanted to start a combined restaurant-cannery at his site on Stewart Avenue. He showed plans and drawings of the $200,000 complex which would employ up to 50 people.

He plans to utilize his canning process which took him three years to develop.

"Two years ago, I worked steadily for six months," he said.

New Houses
Going Up

NANAIMO—Rick English, Western Co-operative Housing Society general manager, has announced that a 20-unit construction program will begin in February.

The project, which will be behind the Quarterway Hotel, Adams Street, will comprise two, three and four-bedroom homes complete with basement, carport and four major appliances. The small houses will cost about $13,000 with $650 down and $105 a month which will include principle, interest and tax payments. The four-bedroom homes will be about $16,500 with $850 down.

SHORT MEETINGS

It was decided to hold a meeting every two months.

Acting chairman Bob Vye said: "We are having the meetings too far apart and there are too many questions and they last too long. I would like to see shorter, snappier meetings."

The dogfish was once a prime commercial fish when their livers were used for the oil content. However, when Japanese scientists discovered how to make the same oil synthetically, the bottom dropped out of the market and the dogfish became a scrap item and a nuisance to both sport and commercial fishermen, he said.

"I've found a way to feed the hungry countries," Armand St. Jean said on Thursday.

He said that until he developed his method of canning dogfish, there was no way to do it because of the high ammonia content.

BIG SCHOOLS

Last year the fisheries department announced it was considering instituting an 11-cent a pound subsidy to help rid coastal waters of the fish. Dogfish schools, which take about 20 years to reach maturity, had become so great that fishermen would run into schools which would fill nets or trolling lines.

College Vote
Queried

CROFTON—The legality of a vote on the setting-up of Malaspina Regional College was questioned by Crofton rate-payers at a meeting this week.

"I want to know about the regional college. Is it legal at this point? I do not remember actually agreeing. Is there any way we can bring it back to the people?"

BOARD BACKED

"I do not feel it is legal and both the city and the municipal councils backed the school board when it did not sign," said Ald. Gerry Smith.

Mayor Donald Morton of North Cowichan said: "It is all very well for people to scream about our taxes going up, but I have difficulty finding people rattled about education taxes."

An invitation was extended to either Mayor Morton, or a council member to attend the next meeting in February to explain how taxes are assessed.

Another
Bylaw Coming?

DUNCAN — The joint Duncan and North Cowichan Recreation Commissions are considering development of another recreation bylaw.

To help plan it, planner John Sanderson is to be asked for the costs of the various components of the original $850,000 bylaw and a third alternative scheme.

The decision was made Thursday a week after Mr. Sanderson outlined two other recreation centre plans at a cost of $600,000.

The third was introduced Thursday night when Mr. Sanderson said in a letter that it would cost $630,000.

Ald. Dick Benzie of Duncan suggested that the individual parts could be provided as money became available but stressed that the commissions should go for the original plan.

He and Mayor Jim Quaife felt they should not go beyond a four-mill increase.

Mayor Quaife said he could raise $10,000 by public subscription within a week through Duncan, Treen-Town and other donors.

Safety Jacket

Bob Langill, chairman of Chemainus Rotary Club helps Toni Chownen into safety jacket. Club presented fluorescent-type jackets to 33 newspaper boys and girls from Crofton, Chemainus and Saltair. Members hope jackets will help to avoid accidents while carriers are working. OTTAWA (CP)—Island Airlines Ltd., at Campbell River, was granted an irregular specific point commercial air licence for service to and from Comox and Tofino, the Canadian Transport Commission announced Thursday.

The licence was granted until the end of 1978, separate from a current company licence covering other B.C. points.

Children Visit Pensioners

And Father Came Too

NANAIMO — When Mayor Frank Ney went to an annual Christmas dinner for Nanaimo and district old age pensioners, he didn't go alone.

Master of ceremonies Al Addison had previously arranged for the first public appearance of Mayor Ney's whole family. His 11 children lined up behind the curtains, unknown to the pensioners, and then Mr. Addison announced them.

"The reason I never bring out the whole family at once is because I have enough trouble trying to keep track of them at home," commented Mayor Ney.

His wife, Jocelyn, said: "It took all day to get them all cleaned up and ready to go out. I'm glad I don't have to do this every year."

One of the pensioners remarked afterwards that "it was very touching to see such a lovely family. It made you realize again how important the family is. It is the foundation of our city, province and country."

Part of the entertainment at the dinner, held in St. Peter's Church were dancing dolls, made by pensioners. They also operated them by thumping with fists on a board, making the dolls jig and jump.

Burnaby-Willingdon Jan. 13

B.C. Byelection Set

VANCOUVER (CP) — A provincial byelection will be held Monday, Jan. 13, to fill the Burnaby-Willingdon seat in the Legislature, Premier Bennett announced here Thursday.

The vacancy was caused by the death Oct. 20 of Fred Vulliamy of the New Democratic Party. Present standing in the 55-seat legislature is Social Credit 32, NDP 16, Liberals six, with one vacancy.

K. L. Morton, chief electoral officer for B.C., said the voters' list for the byelection will close Dec. 20. Nominations will close Saturday, Jan. 4. Advance polls will be open Jan. 9-11.

Mr. Morton said that because of the heavy crush of Christmas mail, special collection centres will be set up where residents of the riding, whose names are not on the list, may turn in registration cards.

Minister Proposes Ban of Far Right

BONN (Reuters) — Interior Minister Ernst Benda will recommend a ban on the extreme right-wing National Democratic party at a cabinet meeting next week, West German government sources said Thursday night.

Benda started a special investigation into the party's activities this fall to decide whether there are sufficient grounds to have it declared unconstitutional.

U.S. JET DIVES INTO SEA

CARACAS (UPI) — Searchers said they found no sign of life today where a Pan American World Airways jet carrying 51 persons from New York exploded and crashed into the Caribbean Thursday night.

The control tower at Maiquetia International Airport said search vessels and planes had spotted fire-blackened wreckage just off the Venezuelan coast.

A tower spokesman said "The plane apparently exploded and burned." Planes and ships however checked further for any survivors.

The Boeing 707 was Pan American's Flight 217 non-stop from New York to Caracas and carried eight crew members and 43 passengers.

Maiquetia control towers said it lost radio contact with the jet six minutes before it was due to land. At the time the plane was 16 miles from the airport and approaching at 1,000 feet.

Pan American spokesmen in New York said the jet sent no message it was in trouble.

But several witnesses told Venezuelan naval authorities they saw it go down.

Pan American said the jet's captain was Sidney Stillwaght of West Islip, N.Y. The co-pilot was William Canell of Upper Saddle River, N.J.; the engineer Richard Titus of Ridge-wood, N.J.; purser Alfred Perez of Valley Stream, N.Y.; purser Mrs. Hedrun Caplan of New York City and stewardesses Francisca Buyers and Catherine Kane of New York and Eve Johansson of Stockholm, Sweden, and a stewardess trainee, Miss M. Ambrey whose hometown was not listed.

East Summit Cancelled

LONDON (UPI) — The Warsaw Pact summit at Badagost, scheduled for early next week, has been cancelled because of unbridled differences among member nations, east European diplomatic sources said Thursday.

Pay, Benefits

Airline Pact Offered

MONTREAL (CP) — The 2,200 Air Canada employees who had begun work-to-rule procedures Monday to back up contract demands have been offered an eight-per-cent increase in wages the airline estimates would cost $1,250,000 in a one-year agreement to Aug. 1, 1969.

John Hayes, vice-president of the Canadian Air Line Employees Association, told a news conference Thursday he would recommend unanimous acceptance of the latest offer.

Other fringe benefits include one more statutory holiday, four weeks vacation after 15 years service instead of after 20, improvements in shift premiums and seniority. Air Canada said the contract is retroactive to last Aug. 1.

Under the last contract which expired July 31, passenger agents earned from $225 to $350.

Only B.C. Disagrees

Constitutional Talk Off Until February

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal-provincial constitutional conference scheduled for next week has been cancelled and Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons Thursday there is general agreement that it should convene early in February.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson said the federal-provincial conference of finance ministers scheduled for Dec. 19 will likely go ahead on that date.

The constitutional conference had been scheduled to open Monday until the sudden illness of Quebec Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand.

Trudeau said in reply to Opposition leader Robert Stanfield that all provinces except one accepted the idea of a conference postponement as requested by Quebec.

He did not name the province but it is known to be British Columbia.

Trudeau said one province cannot see its way clear to a February meeting but that he hopes some suitable arrangement can be worked out. Again, he did not name the province.

The prime minister said in reply to Lincoln Alexander (PC-Hamilton West) that some provinces have asked that the federal government's official languages bill not be passed by Parliament before the constitutional conference.

As a result, debate on the bill would be postponed at least a month.

Trudeau said it may be possible to put the bill through every stage except third and final reading before the constitutional conference.

David Macdonald (PC-Egmont) asked that the federal government's position papers on the constitution be made public in sufficient time before the conference so that there could be public discussion of the issue.

Trudeau said this will be considered after a new date for the conference is set.

Bennett Brief Won't Wait For Parley

Premier Bennett, saying the issues are too urgent to be shelved, plans to release copies of the B.C. brief on the constitution at a press conference today.

"There are many things before Parliament now, and more coming, that bear on the constitutional situation that we feel there should be no delay," the premier said Thursday.

"If the federal government really wants a conference we feel it should be held now and we're going to release our position, or brief, anyway because we think these things before Parliament, and others, are so important."

"We want British Columbians to know what their government's position is and we want the country to know it too before Parliament deals with these things."

The press conference was scheduled before Quebec's Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand, in hospital for treatment of "cardiac troubles," requested the constitutional conference to be held in Ottawa next week be postponed.

Still Too Many Boats Involved

Fisheries Face New Cuts

OTTAWA (CP) — Further deputy fisheries minister, said he extended, possibly by the government buying up current-ly-licensed boats.

The fisheries department had just taken steps to prevent new boats joining in the Pacific salmon catch. But eventually this moratorium would have to be extended, possibly by the government buying up current-ly-licensed boats.

Needler, appearing before the Senate science policy committee, said studies show that at least 100 boats would have to be extended, possibly by the government buying up current-ly-licensed boats.

'Mysterious Epidemic' Strikes 104 Teachers

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — A "mysterious epidemic" struck down 104 of New Westminster's 120 elementary school teachers Thursday.

As a result of the teachers' absence 450 children were sent home from 12 classes in Grades 5, 6 and 7.

SUBSTITUTES

The remainder of the 3,700 students in the city's eight elementary schools stayed at school, some under the supervision of 40 substitute teachers.

A school board spokesman described it as a "mysterious epidemic."

The teachers have been working to rule to gain direct talks between the New Westminster Elementary School Teachers Association and the school board instead of having to deal through the board's negotiator, George P. Cassidy.

In working to rule, the teachers have refused to supervise lunch hours or engage in extra-curricular school activities.

Lorne Walker, spokesman for the teachers, said they wanted to sit down with the board and discuss "the situation and atmosphere that exists in the district."

FATIGUE

He said they did not want to discuss salaries, which have gone to arbitration, but to meet the board on equal ground "not on a lord-serf relationship."

Mr. Walker, one of the teachers absent from school Thursday, said he was suffering from fatigue.

He said he understood his colleagues had a variety of ailments—"colds, headaches, flu and mental fatigue."

Officers Cleared In Sinking

WELLINGTON (Reuters) — Charges against the master, chief officer and chief engineer of a vessel which sank here with the loss of 51 lives have been formally dismissed, the New Zealand Parliament was told today.

The charges were that each caused the deaths and the loss of the 8,948-ton inter-island ferry Wahine which foundered in Wellington harbor during a storm April 10.

Best Use of Money

Cards Yield To Real Aid

For someone who lives alone in a room that is tucked away in a big downtown building, Christmas cards can become extremely important.

At this time of year they provide a strong link with the past, with the world that lies outside that lonely room.

But for someone like Mrs. Anita Hayward, a cheerful, 80-year-old widow who lives alone on Fort Street, there is something that becomes more important than this.

It can perhaps be expressed best by her own thoughts as she recorded them on a scratch pad the other day.

"Dear friends on my Christmas card list," she wrote, "I have been reading the Colonist's sad stories of the poor souls who have so little money at Christmas and all through the year."

Her notes go on to detail how she decided at the last moment to refrain from spending money on Christmas cards so she could donate a similar amount to the Colanist 500 Fund.
